"THE REPUBLICAN" CHANGES HANDS

It Appears To-day Under New Management and Control.

C. E. DORWORTH, ED.

Our Aim is to Turn Out An Up-To-Date, Progressive Newspaper—Republican for All Republicans in Centre County —Watch Us Grow.

With this issue "The Republican" appears under new management and control. Earle C. Tuten retires and is succeeded by Charles E. Dorworth.

In assuming charge of "The Republican" Mr. Dorworth returns to Centre county after being associated for three years with the old Pittsburg "Times," and for the last eight years or more with the Philadelphia "Press."

Coming back to Centre county is, to us, coming back home. In an absence of eleven years we have seen some few things, had some experiences, learned a little, perhaps, in the strenuous school of city newspaper life and now we are glad to return home.

Our aim is to produce an up-to-date, progressive Republican newspaper for Centre county. Primarily "The Republican" is in business to print the news. We want to make it your newspaper. We want it to go into every home in Centre county and become a member of the family.

Co-operation is the inspiration of business success and the sure road to the sunny side of life. To the merchants of Centre county "The Republican" announces its determination to champion, the principle of home people patronizing home institutions. We do not believe in the theory of sending aid to a foreign shore when some one who needs our help is just around the corner. We believe Centre county people should patronize, to the fullest measure, Centre county merchants. You cannot help the merchants to advertise their goods and make their business a credit to the community if you buy your goods away from home.

"The Republican" wants and needs your co-operation to make it a success. The get-together spirit wins every time. We invite the people to become enrolled as our subscribers and the merchants to avail themselves of our advertising columns. We are perfectly frank in this. We will continue to be so. We want you to be frank with us. If you like "The Republican," say so and tell your friends. If you don't like it tell us, that we may learn of our mistakes. Most newspapers that try to do things make some mistakes. The only perfect newspaper is the "Resurrection Herald," and that is not printed in Centre county.

Politically, "The Republican" as its name implies, is of and for the Republican party. It is for all Republicans. It has no axes to grind, no faction or factions to serve and no secret or selfish interests to foster. In advance of primary elections "The Republican" will not support one candidate to the disadvantage of another. Once nominations are made, however, "The Republican" will accord its support to the party ticket, for we believe that in politics, as in all governing bodies, the will of the majority should prevail.

After all, there isn't any difference between a Republican and a Democrat when it comes to showing appreciation for a wide-awake progressive, up-do-date newspaper. Now is the time to subscribe at $1 a year, strictly in advance.

BUYS LINGLE HOUSE

A. G. Morris, of Tyrone, Will Move to Bellefonte.

A. G. Morris, who has made Tyrone his home for many years but who spent so much time here that we regarded him as one of our own, last week purchased the handsome residence of W. C. Lingle, on Linn Street, and will make Bellefonte his home in the future. It is expected that Mr. Morris will have possession of his new home in the next few weeks. Mr. Lingle has decided to locate in Philipsburg, where he will engage in the mining of coal. Everybody will be sorry to see the Lingles leave town. It goes without saying that everybody welcomes Mr. Morris as a fellow-citizen.

Gregg Post at Church.

Patriotic services were held in a number of the Bellefonte churches on July 4th. At the Methodist Church Rev. Dr. Thomas S. Wilcox preached a special sermon for Gregg Post, No. 95. The church was prettily decorated with flags.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS

An Explanation Made Necessary By New Postal Regulations.

The new management of the Republican respectfully calls the attention of subscribers to the fact that there are many unsettled accounts on our books. Some of these are of long-standing while others are of more recent date.

It is absolutely necessary that all be promptly adjusted and we invite the same spirit of co-operation which we propose to extend in making "The Republican" a successful newspaper.

The postal laws prohibit our sending the paper through the mails to subscribers who are in arrears. The justice of such regulation may be open to question but this, unfortunately, does not change matters or relieve us from compliance wi h the postal regulations. Subscribers, by referring to the label on their paper, will see at a glance to what year subscriptions have been paid. From the date on the label down to the present time represents to what extent a subscriber is in arrears.

We have opened new books and are now engaged in adjusting unpaid accounts. We sincerely hope all subscribers who are in arrears will pay up so we may transfer their names to the new books and have the right to continue sending the paper through the mails. All arrears on subscriptions are payable at "The Republican" office.

It is likewise important to keep in mind the fact that from this time on the price of "The Republican" is $1 a year, strictly in advance.

DIED AT 98 YEARS

Samuel Shanck, of Boggs Twp, Had Almost Rounded Out Century Mark.

Samuel Shanck, of Boggs Township, one of the oldest men in Pennsylvania, died on Sunday, July 11, after an extended illness. He was born February 21, 1811. Had he lived until February, next, he would have been 99 years old. The funeral was held on Tuesday from the home of David Wentzel, a son-in-law. Interment was made at the Advent cemetery, north of Milesburg. Mr. Shanck is survived by several daughters and sons, as follows: Mrs. Jonathan Baker, Yarnell; M.s. John Shanck, Climber City, Indiana; Mrs. David Wentzel, Pleasant Valley; Jacob Shank, Mt. Eagle; Michael Shanck, Johnstown; William Shanck, Bradford, and Alfred Shanck, Yarnell. One son, Daniel, is dead.

WOMAN KILLS BIG SNAKE

Mrs. T. C. Weaver, of Fiedler, Despatches Monster Rattler.

Mrs. T. C. Weaver, of Fiedler, bears the proud distinction of killing a monster rattlesnake nearby her home, on Friday of last week. When measured the snake was found to be four feet, nine inches in length, and was as thick through as a man's arm. The snake had ten rattles. Among her many friends Mrs. Weaver is naturally quite a hero. If any Centre county woman can beat this we would like to have her report the same through the columns of this paper.

Sells His Last Horse.

When the automobile was being introduced one of the many to take positive ground in favor of horses was Colonel W. Fred Reynolds. To friends he laughingly remarked that he would rather have any one of his horses than two or three automobiles. All of which is preliminary to the fact that last week he sold his riding horse to Christ Beezer, and he now has no horses and several automobiles. Christ had the Reynolds horse but a short time, selling him to Dr. Brocherhoff.

We'll Swear to This.

Harry Hassinger caught a 23-inch trout below McCoy's dam last Thursday night. He was using a black fly when he hooked the trout in shallow water. For a time he thought he had connected with a whale. When he finally landed the fish it proved to be a trout that came within one inch of measuring two feet in length. At least, that's what Harry told another fellow who told us.

Arthur Buddinger Weds.

Arthur B. Buddinger, a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Buddinger, of Snow Shoe, but who has been residing in Clearfield for some time past, gave his friends a surprise last week by announcing his marriage to Miss May Croyle, of near Clearfield. They will make their home in Clearfield.

Prize Winners Announced.

Announcement was made Monday of prize winners for excellence in studies at the Bellefonte Academy in the last term. Frederick Mugele, of Pittsburg, won the James Potter Hughes mathematical prize, of $10. Samuel Gray, of Bellefonte, won the latin prize, of $5.

GOVERNOR STUART EXTENDS GREETING

Sends Kindly Congratulations to "The Republican"

HIGHLY PRIZED LETTER

Pennsylvania's Chief Executive and Judge von Moschzisker Write Messages of Encouragement to New Management of This Newspaper.

Encouragement helps one along, no matter what may be the venture. To the many persons who have so kindly taken the trouble to wish us success in the management of "The Republican" we extend heartfelt appreciation. Some have written us letters. Others have stopped us on the street to say a good word and wish us luck. We trust that the worth of "The Republican," and its improvement from week to week, will demonstrate how fully we appreciate and wish to merit these assurances of approval and support.

That among those to take the time and trouble to write us a word of greeting and good cheer should be Governor Stuart and Judge Robert von Moschzisker, of Philadelphia, the distinguished jurist who has been nominated by the Republican party for Supreme Court Justice, is deeply gratifying. Entirely aside from the question of our personal friendship, that has covered a period of several years, the high esteem in which he is held by the people of Centre County and the State at-large more than justifies our pride in being so kindly remembered by Governor Stuart. That our patrons and friends may share with us the greeting from the Governor we reproduce his letter.

From our friend Judge von Moschzisker we received the following letter, wishing "The Republican" great success and asking to have his name enrolled as one of our subscribers:

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER
HARRISBURG

July 10, 1909.

My dear Dorworth:-

I am pleased to learn that you have assumed the management of the Bellefonte Republican, and I heartily congratulate you on your new undertaking. I am satisfied that, with your experience in journalism, the "Republican", under your management, will be a great success.

With assurance of personal regard and esteem, I remain,-

Yours sincerely,
Edwin S. Stuart

Mr. Charles E. Dorworth,
Bellefonte Republican,
Bellefonte, Pa.

Phila., July 7, 1909.

MR. CHARLES E. DORWORTH,
Bellefonte Republican,
Bellefonte, Pa.

My dear Mr. Dorworth:

I am informed that you have taken up your work in a new field and that you are now the publisher of "The Bellefonte Republican." Will you be good enough to enter my name upon the subscription list? I wish and predict for you and for "The Republican" great succcess.

Sincerely yours,
ROBERT VON MOSCHZISKER.

We are glad and proud to enroll Judge von Moschzisker as one of our subscribers. We sincerely trust he will come to value it as much as we value his friendship, which dates back to the time when the writer was a "cub" reporter and Judge von Moschzisker was a struggling young lawyer.

Thomas Merriman Dead.

Thomas Craven Merriman, the oldest son of Mrs. E. C. Merriman, of this place, died in San Francisco, on Wednesday of last week. He was 36 years old, and had been in declining health for some time.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Six-year-old Emma Miller Has Narrow Escape from Death.

Little Emma Miller, the six-year-old daughter of Herbert Miller, had a narrow escape from death while playing at her home, on East High Street, on Friday morning of last week. A gun, in the hands of her eleven year old brother, Roy, was accidentally discharged and a load of fine shot lodged in her left leg below the knee. Fortunately the barrel of the gun was pointed downward or the load of shot might have struck a vital spot.

With her brother and several other children Emma was playing about the house when the accident occurred. It seems that one of the boys had borrowed a shot gun with which to kill a cat. The gun, reloaded, was then placed in the Miller house, but one of the boys asked Roy to bring it out into the yard. Innocently picking up the gun Roy started to carry it out, but in trying to open the front door of the house and also the screen door, the gun went off. The load of shot ripped its way through the screen door and struck little Emma Miller, who happened to be sitting on a bucket on the porch.

The report of the gun and the screams of the children quickly brought aid, and the injured child was carried into the house. Dr. E. S. Dorworth was summoned and he found that forty shot had entered her leg. Fortunately the shot were very small, and while the flesh was torn no bones were broken. The little girl is recovering nicely.

ORDERS TO BUILD

Hospital Administration Building Will Cost About $15,000.

Orders to go ahead with the erection of the proposed administration building for the Bellefonte Hospital were issued at a meeting of the trustees, held on Monday night last. The work will cost, it is estimated, upward of $15,000. The contractors were instructed to begin operations as soon as possible. The trustees have about $8,000 in hand, and a citizen, whose identity has not been disclosed, has contributed $2,000 toward the fund. This leaves a balance of about $5,000 to be raised.

The partitions in the hospital will be changed to brick in order that they will be fireproof and that the several rooms may be free from noise. Concrete floors will be laid.

When the proposed improvements are completed the Bellefonte Hospital will take rank with the most modern similar institutions outside the larger cities.

While the trustees were in session they investigated the recent reports, freely discussed on the streets, of carelessness in the managetttent of the hospital. At the conclusion of the meeting it was announced that the investigation disclosed that the reports were not entirely warranted. An Executive Committee was named to consider and correct all things not for the best interests of the several patients, and to add every advantage possible for their comfort and health.

Send us $1 and we will send you all the news in "The Republican" each week for one year.

TO VOTE AUG. 17 ON $33,000 SCHOOL LOAN

Bellefonte Directors Advertise Special Election.

TOTAL COST IS $65,000

Statement is Issued to Explain Situation Which Requires Additional Loan to Complete New Building—Re-elect Old Teachers.

A special election of the citizens of Bellefonte has been called for Tuesday, August 17, to determine whether the School Board shall have the authority to borrow $33,000 with which to complete the proposed new school building, at Allegheny and Linn streets. On this basis the total new debt for the new building is estimated at $65,000.

In deciding to submit the question of the additional loan to a popular vote the School Board, over the signatures of Henry C. Quigley, president, and James K. Barnhart, secretary, issued a statement giving a complete explanation of the situation. This recites conditions leading up to the decision to erect a new building, why the old stone building was torn down, and what is planned in the way of a new building. The statement also sets forth the power of the School Board, under the law, to proceed, as is proposed, to borrow the money.

According to members of the board, it will be possible to complete the new building and have it ready for occupancy by Thanksgiving, if the people authorize the $33,000 loan.

The statement issued by the board is as follows:

TO THE CITIZENS OF THE BOROUGH:

There has existed for some years a necessity for better public school facilities in the borough. This need has been felt by the citizens to such an extent that from five to eight years past there has been a continuous demand made upon the school board to provide proper buildings [illegible] lation of the borough. Giving heed to this demand of the people the board finally determined to provide a new building, large enough to accommodate the schools at present and for many years to come.

To do this and not at the same time unduly burden those who pay taxes was the first question which the board had of necessity to decide. The School District having no debt which was contracted since 1873, the board of course had the authority to create or incur a new debt, not exceeding two per cent. on the last adjusted valuation of property in the borough taxable for school purposes, which for 1908, was fixed at $1,643,361. This would yield $32,867.22 and on this basis there was a loan of $32,000.00 authorized; In planning and endeavor to construct for you a good substantial building, practically fireproof, lighted, heated and ventilated as required by law, we find will exceed in cost the above sum. The board has concluded to effect a further loan for the purpose of completing the building now in course of construction. To this loan the law requires your assent.

In compliance with the state constitution which in section VIII of article IX, provides that no municipality or school district shall increase their indebtedness in a sum exceeding two per centum on the assessed valuation of the taxable property therein, without the assent of the electors thereof, at a public election held in such manner as is provided by law, the board comes to you for authority to further increase the indebtedness of the school district to the sum of $33,000 which would be a trifle less than two per centum on the assessed valuation of the taxable property in the borough as adjusted for the year 1909, and would make the total new debt for the new building $65,0000. This sum includes the building, heating and ventilating, some new furniture, other furnishings, walks, and grading required and a new pavement along the Allegheny street front, so that when done, we will have a finished building with good surroundings.

Perhaps some further statement is needed in order that you may fully understand the action and purpose of the board. The patrons of the schools as stated have been demanding better school facilities. To provide this, was the duty of the board. In doing this they must of course act on their best judgment, in the light of such information as they could obtain. This the board has done.

WHY THE STONE BUILDING WAS TAKEN DOWN.

For years, indeed, from the time it was first occupied the Stone Building proved unsatisfactory. It never could be heated in cold weather as constructed. Steam heat, which was put in the building in 1865, did not furnish much relief, but in a measure cooked the pupils. There were no means of ventilating the building without lowering or raising the windows and then there was a draft. The light was poor, and on cloudy days it was practically impossible to continue the work of the school. The physicians of the town have often declared that it was a place in which to breed disease and work injury to the eyes of the young people. The school rooms were small, be-

BELLEFONTE WINS

Plays Brilliant Game, Defeating Jersey Shore Club, 9 to 5.

Bellefonte went down to Jersey Shore yesterday and defeated the strong baseball club, of that place, 9 to 5. The Bellefonte boys put up a brilliant game. The Lock Haven-Renovo game, scheduled for yesterday, was postponed. Bellefonte has now won five games and lost eight. Our boys are heading for third place and at the rate they are going it won't be long until they land there.

The last few days have witnessed some important changes which mean much to our home team. J. Mitchell Cunningham has taken charge, as manager He is the man for the place. He has managed successful teams before this. He will make our's a winning team.

Since the boys took on a spurt and defeated Jersey Shore twice in one day, last week, the personnel has been greatly strengthened. Kauffman and Daggett are one strong battery. Another fine battery is Martz and Turner. Jacobs, at short, and Roberts at second, with Keichline holding down third are a fine combination. Otto, at first, is always on the job. The outfield is equally good.

From this time on let us whoop it up for the home team. We can help the boys play winning ball by giving them large crowds at each game. More encouragement and less knocking will prompt them to bang out the ball and bring in the runs. Team work is necessary if any ball club is to get to the top. The Bellefonte club is putting up better team work now than at any time since the league was formed. Large crowds, and a little applause contributed here and there, will still further improve the team work, and it won't be long until our boys will be leading in the race.

Our next home game will be on Saturday, when Renovo plays here. Let everybody plan to go out and help Bellefonte win. Let us give the boys the biggest crowd they have had at any game this year.

ladies will be admitted free. One of the most encouraging signs of interest in the game picking up is the enthusiasm being displayed by the women of town. Once they become fully aroused the crowd will be on hand for every game. Bellefonte can have a winning team. It's up to our own people to make it a success or a failure. We believe they will turn in and make it a success. When the Finance Committee comes around don't lock the front door.

CAMPERS RETURN

Bellefonters Had Delightful Outing At "Merryhurst."

The Hughes camping party, which spent three weeks at "Merryhurst," near Snow Shoe, returned home on Tuesday night of last week. All reported having had a delightful outing in the woods. Sounds like stretching it a bit, but nevertheless its true that Rev. J. P. Hughes was the youngest one in the group. He's only 82 years of age. Others in the party were Mrs. Minnie Hughes, Mrs. J. R. Hughes, Mr. J. R. Hughes, Sherwood E. Hall, Arthur Dale, Ethel Dale, Margaret Hughes, Dollie Sitnek, Carolyn Hughes, Alice Hughes, Hazel Cook, Rebecca Jacobs, Mildred Locke and Arthur Hughes. Among the visitors to the camp were Mrs. Katharine Dinges, Miss Emma Green, Miss Nellie Conley and Miss Marie Reese.

Rev. Dr. Milligan Dead.

Rev. J. Lynn Milligan, D. D., who was for forty years chaplain at the Western Penitentiary, died at the residenee of his brother-in-law, J. Holmes Irwin, at Newport, on Monday, July 12. He had been an invalid for six months. He was with the 140th Reg. Penna. Vols. during the Civil War. For thirty years he was Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Allegheny, and for eighteen years secretary of the National Prison Congress. In 1898 he was president of the American Prison Congress. Mr. Milligan was a brother of the late Mrs. Jennie M. VanTries, wife of Dr. Thomas C. VanTries, of this place. The funeral will be held today, at Williamsport.

Farmer's House Burned.

A disastrous fire near Snow Shoe early last week was that which completely destroyed the fine home of Frank Tubridy. The loss was upward of $2500, without a penny of insurance. Fortunately the barn and its contents were saved from the flames. The house was not only totally ruined but all the household furniture, bedding, etc., were burned.

Fortunately the barrel of the gun was pointed downward or the load of shot might have struck a vital spot.

With her brother and several other children Emma was playing about the house when the accident occurred. It seems that one of the boys had borrowed a shot gun with which to kill a cat. The gun, reloaded, was then placed in the Miller house, but one of the boys asked Roy to bring it out into the yard. Innocently picking up the gun Roy started to carry it out, but in trying to open the front door of the house and also the screen door, the gun went off. The load of shot ripped its way through the screen door and struck little Emma Miller, who happened to be sitting on a bucket on the porch.

The report of the gun and the screams of the children quickly brought aid, and the injured child was carried into the house. Dr. E. S. Dorworth was summoned and he found that forty shot had entered her leg. Fortunately the shot were very small, and while the flesh was torn no bones were broken. The little girl is recovering nicely.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER
HARRISBURG

July 10, 1909.

My dear Dorworth:-

I am pleased to learn that you have assumed the management of the Bellefonte Republican, and I heartily congratulate you on your new undertaking. I am satisfied that, with your experience in journalism, the "Republican", under your management, will be a great success.

With assurance of personal regard and esteem, I remain,-

Yours sincerely,
Edw. S. Stuart

Mr. Charles E. Dorworth,
Bellefonte Republican,
Bellefonte, Pa.

ORDERS TO BUILD

Hospital Administration Building Will Cost About $15,000.

Orders to go ahead with the erection of the proposed administration building for the Bellefonte Hospital were issued at a meeting of the trustees, held on Monday night last. The work will cost, it is estimated, upward of $15,000. The contractors were instructed to begin operations as soon as possible. The trustees have about $8,000 in hand, and a citizen, whose identity has not been disclosed, has contributed $2,000 toward the fund. This leaves a balance of about $5,000 to be raised.

The partitions in the hospital will be changed to brick in order that they will be fireproof and that the several rooms may be free from noise. Concrete floors will be laid.

When the proposed improvements are completed the Bellefonte Hospital will take rank with the most modern similar institutions outside the larger cities.

While the trustees were in session they investigated the recent reports, freely discussed on the streets, of carelessness in the managetttent of the hospital. At the conclusion of the meeting it was announced that the investigation disclosed that the reports were not entirely warranted. An Executive Committee was named to consider and correct all things not for the best interests of the several patients, and to add every advantage possible for their comfort and health.

Send us $1 and we will send you all the news in "The Republican" each week for one year.

TO VOTE AUG. 17 ON $33,000 SCHOOL LOAN

Bellefonte Directors Advertise Special Election.

TOTAL COST IS $65,000

Statement is Issued to Explain Situation Which Requires Additional Loan to Complete New Building—Re-elect Old Teachers.

A special election of the citizens of Bellefonte has been called for Tuesday, August 17, to determine whether the School Board shall have the authority to borrow $33,000 with which to complete the proposed new school building, at Allegheny and Linn streets. On this basis the total new debt for the new building is estimated at $65,000.

In deciding to submit the question of the additional loan to a popular vote the School Board, over the signatures of Henry C. Quigley, president, and James K. Barnhart, secretary, issued a statement giving a complete explanation of the situation. This recites conditions leading up to the decision to erect a new building, why the old stone building was torn down, and what is planned in the way of a new building. The statement also sets forth the power of the School Board, under the law, to proceed, as is proposed, to borrow the money.

According to members of the board, it will be possible to complete the new building and have it ready for occupancy by Thanksgiving, if the people authorize the $33,000 loan.

The statement issued by the board is as follows:

TO THE CITIZENS OF THE BOROUGH:

There has existed for some years a necessity for better public school facilities in the borough. This need has been felt by the citizens to such an extent that from five to eight years past there has been a continuous demand made upon the school board to provide proper buildings and accommodations for the population of the borough. Giving heed to this demand of the people the board finally determined to provide a new building, large enough to accommodate the schools at present and for many years to come.

To do this and not at the same time unduly burden those who pay taxes was the first question which the board had of necessity to decide. The School District having no debt which was contracted since 1873, the board of course had the authority to create or incur a new debt, not exceeding two per cent. on the last adjusted valuation of property in the borough taxable for school purposes, which for 1908, was fixed at $1,643,361. This would yield $32,867.22 and on this basis there was a loan of $32,000.00 authorized; In planning and endeavor to construct for you a good substantial building, practically fireproof, lighted, heated and ventilated as required by law, we find will exceed in cost the above sum. The board has concluded to effect a further loan for the purpose of completing the building now in course of construction. To this loan the law requires your assent.

In compliance with the state constitution which in section VIII of article IX, provides that no municipality or school district shall increase their indebtedness in a sum exceeding two per centum on the assessed valuation of the taxable property therein, without the assent of the electors thereof, at a public election held in such manner as is provided by law, the board comes to you for authority to further increase the indebtedness of the school district to the sum of $33,000 which would be a trifle less than two per centum on the assessed valuation of the taxable property in the borough as adjusted for the year 1909, and would make the total new debt for the new building $65,0000. This sum includes the building, heating and ventilating, some new furniture, other furnishings, walks, and grading required and a new pavement along the Allegheny street front, so that when done, we will have a finished building with good surroundings.

Perhaps some further statement is needed in order that you may fully understand the action and purpose of the board. The patrons of the schools as stated have been demanding better school facilities. To provide this, was the duty of the board. In doing this they must of course act on their best judgment, in the light of such information as they could obtain. This the board has done.

WHY THE STONE BUILDING WAS TAKEN DOWN.

For years, indeed, from the time it was first occupied the Stone Building proved unsatisfactory. It never could be heated in cold weather as constructed. Steam heat, which was put in the building in 1865, did not furnish much relief, but in a measure cooked the pupils. There were no means of ventilating the building without lowering or raising the windows and then there was a draft. The light was poor, and on cloudy days it was practically impossible to continue the work of the school. The physicians of the town have often declared that it was a place in which to breed disease and work injury to the eyes of the young people. The school rooms were small, be-

BELLEFONTE WINS

Plays Brilliant Game, Defeating Jersey Shore Club, 9 to 5.

Bellefonte went down to Jersey Shore yesterday and defeated the strong baseball club, of that place, 9 to 5. The Bellefonte boys put up a brilliant game. The Lock Haven-Renovo game, scheduled for yesterday, was postponed. Bellefonte has now won five games and lost eight. Our boys are heading for third place and at the rate they are going it won't be long until they land there.

The last few days have witnessed some important changes which mean much to our home team. J. Mitchell Cunningham has taken charge, as manager He is the man for the place. He has managed successful teams before this. He will make our's a winning team.

Since the boys took on a spurt and defeated Jersey Shore twice in one day, last week, the personnel has been greatly strengthened. Kauffman and Daggett are one strong battery. Another fine battery is Martz and Turner. Jacobs, at short, and Roberts at second, with Keichline holding down third, are a fine combination. Otto, at first, is always on the job. The outfield is equally good.

From this time on let us whoop it up for the home team. We can help the boys play winning ball by giving them large crowds at each game. More encouragement and less knocking will prompt them to bang out the ball and bring in the runs. Team work is necessary if any ball club is to get to the top. The Bellefonte club is putting up better team work now than at any time since the league was formed. Large crowds, and a little applause contributed here and there, will still further improve the team work, and it won't be long until our boys will be leading in the race,

Our next home game will be on Saturday, when Renovo plays here. Let everybody plan to go out and help Bellefonte win. Let us give the boys the biggest crowd they have had at any game this year.

Ladies will be admitted free. One of the most encouraging signs of interest in the game picking up is the enthusiasm being displayed by the women of town. Once they become fully aroused the crowd will be on hand for every game. Bellefonte can have a winning team. It's up to our own people to make it a success or a failure. We believe they will turn in and make it a success. When the Finance Committee comes around don't lock the front door.

CAMPERS RETURN

Bellefonters Had Delightful Outing At "Merryhurst."

The Hughes camping party, which spent three weeks at "Merryhurst," near Snow Shoe, returned home on Tuesday night of last week. All reported having had a delightful outing in the woods. Sounds like stretching it a bit, but nevertheless its true that Rev. J. P. Hughes was the youngest one in the group. He's only 82 years of age. Others in the party were Mrs. Minnie Hughes, Mrs. J. R. Hughes, Mr. J. R. Hughes, Sherwood E. Hall, Arthur Dale, Ethel Dale, Margaret Hughes, Dollie Sitnek, Carolyn Hughes, Alice Hughes, Hazel Cook, Rebecca Jacobs, Mildred Locke and Arthur Hughes. Among the visitors to the camp were Mrs. Katharine Dinges, Miss Emma Green, Miss Nellie Conley and Miss Marie Reese.

Rev. Dr. Milligan Dead.

Rev. J. Lynn Milligan, D. D., who was for forty years chaplain at the Western Penitentiary, died at the residenee of his brother-in-law, J. Holmes Irwin, at Newport, on Monday, July 12. He had been an invalid for six months. He was with the 140th Reg. Penna. Vols. during the Civil War. For thirty years he was Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Allegheny, and for eighteen years secretary of the National Prison Congress. In 1898 he was president of the American Prison Congress. Mr. Milligan was a brother of the late Mrs. Jennie M. VanTries, wife of Dr. Thomas C. VanTries, of this place. The funeral will be held today, at Williamsport.

Farmer's House Burned.

A disastrous fire near Snow Shoe early last week was that which completely destroyed the fine home of Frank Tubridy. The loss was upward of $2500, without a penny of insurance. Fortunately the barn and its contents were saved from the flames. The house was not only totally ruined but all the household furniture, bedding, etc., were burned.

The Man From Home

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

This romance deals with a curious admixture of American plainness and European high life; with a young Indiana girl dazzled by a title and in the clutches of a quartet of sharpers headed by an impecunious British peer; with the girl's Anglomaniac brother, a Russian noble in disguise, an escaped Russian convict and a faithless wife, and, most important of all, with the girl's shrewd, witty, courageous, resourceful guardian, Daniel Voorhees Pike of Kokomo. Daniel loves the Indiana girl and is determined to save her from the sharpers even against her own will. Read and you will learn how Daniel, with but a single friend to aid him, faced a most difficult dilemma and why he figured so prominently in an international romance in which heraldry was more important than hearts and cupidity far more conspicuous than Cupid.

CHAPTER I.

"IT'S A GIRL!"

HIS feet on the desk of the office in the Central with the worn features and the kindly gray eyes that always seemed a perpetual rebuke to the face in which they were set ruminated over the letter he held in his hand. His back was to the door—a half glass door which was also the main and only entrance to the room and which bore upon its translucent surface in ragged letters, worn by the polishing the glass had undergone, the words, "Daniel Voorhees Pike, Attorney at Law."

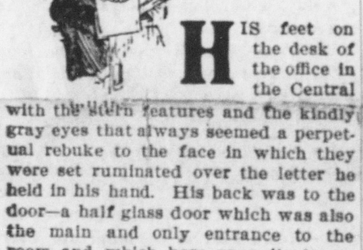
Pike himself had a queer twist of feature, a sort of whimsicality that pervaded the very atmosphere about him, and the smile with which he regarded the letter he held had a world of reminiscence and sadness in it.

As he gazed at it the letter seemed to fade into nothingness, and in its place there rose the picture of a day years before, a day that caused the dingy walls of the office to become tenuous and gauzy, and through the gauze he seemed to see another office—a ramshackle sort of place, with a tin sign showing through the window which informed the passerby that real estate was the commodity dispensed within. To Pike the picture grew yet more distinct, and in the broken bottom cane chair he saw the figure of a heavy faced man in his shirt sleeves engaged in smoking a corncob pipe.

In another corner of the room he could see a red headed boy poring over a pine table, laboriously copying in a round hand some title deeds. Then, through the reaches of the past, he seemed to hear the heavy faced man remove the pipe from his mouth and heard him speak.

"Dan," he said, "it's a girl!"

And he heard the gasp the boy gave forth as he turned about on his stool



"Show her to Dan."

and looked with startled eyes into the kindly blue ones that glimmered into his own.

"A—girl!" he seemed to hear the boy say. "A little girl, Mr. Simpson?"

In his fancy he saw the big man nod, saw him place the pipe back in his teeth and extend his two palms until they were a foot or so apart.

"A girl, Dan," he heard, "'bout so long, Dan, and purtier than all get out. An' she's goin' to be a big responsibility, my boy. We'll have to sell a heap of lots to pay what she's goin' to cost, Dan—a whole heap of lots."

And gradually the picture seemed to fade away, and, like a dissolving view, its place was taken by another—the picture of a half timbered house that stood back among some trees at the corner of Main and Center streets. He could see the worn steps leading up to the veranda and himself approaching half fearfully along the gravel walk that led in from the rusty gate.

On the veranda sat the big man with the heavy features and the corncob pipe, and he heard the voice again bidding him come up. And then there was a call to some one within, and a woman emerged with a white bundle in her arms.

"Show her to Dan," he heard the man's voice say, and then, when the woman had removed a bit of the flannel covering from the little face and he had looked upon it, startled, abashed and marvelously choking as to the throat, the big voice went on again:

"She's going to be Ethel, Dan, that bundle of infancy. And maybe some of these days she'll be getting herself in a tight place, and it's going to be up to you, Dan, to help her out, and you're going to promise me that you'll do it, boy. Horace, the other kid, he'll grow up maybe to have sense, and he'll look out for himself, but it's a tough place for girls, Dan—a mighty tough place."

He could almost hear the hushed voice in which the boy had given the required promise and the awe with which he heard that the newest atom of humanity to arrive was already motherless, and then the picture faded again. Then came a succession of similar views.

He saw the dingy real estate office grow into a respectable brick building, and then into a handsome stone edifice, and the heavy featured man turn grayer and grayer and more somber and more hardworking, and he could remember the day when the tiny Ethel was brought to the office for the first time and of the manner in which she began to grow up. He recalled the day when she reached the mature age of twelve and of how he had presented to her a Bible for a gift and of the manner in which he had blushed for all his twenty-five years.

[illegible] John Simpson had confided to him that the "kids" were to be given advantages and were to be sent abroad to school. There came a blank after that, but he recalled as if it had been but yesterday the feeling with which he had gone off into a corner and wrestled with the grief that had beset him. He could even see the fluttering hand that waved to him from the car window as the train took her and her brother away.

Suddenly the door behind him opened and shut quickly, and quick steps caused him to drop his feet to the floor. He turned and found a visitor at his elbow.

"Dan," said the newcomer, "it's all yours. Jenkins just got a telegram that the K. and G. has decided to offer you the representation for this end of the state."

"That so?" responded Pike aimlessly.

"Of course it's so, man!" replied the other, shaking him vigorously by the shoulder. "Wake up, can't you? It's worth fifteen thousand a year to you!"

Pike turned quizzical eyes upon his friend and folded the letter he held in his hand.

"Much obliged to you, Tom," he said. "I guess I'm kind of upset today. Got a letter here that—jolted me a little. I'm thinking of going away for a spell."

"Going away!" ejaculated his friend with wide eyes. "Going away! Where?"

"I guess I'll take a trip across the water," replied Pike dreamily. "Always wanted to see those foreign parts, those Venices and Romes and Londons. Must be a queer tribe over there, Tom. Not much like us plain folks here, eh? Lots of high and mighty dukes and earls and things and coats of arms and crowns and coaches with white horses, eh?"

Tom Perkins sat down in a chair with a gasp of astonishment. He stared at his friend with frank amazement written on his face and opened his mouth twice before his lips formed the words.

"Europe!" he said at last.

"Europe," he replied. "Say, Tom, you remember Jim Cooley? They sent Jim over there, didn't they? Made him vice consul or something over in London? I'd maybe get a chance to see Jim and talk to him about—about old times."

His voice died down, and he regarded the wall again.

"Never happened to hear of folks over there of the name of—of Hawcastle, did you, Tom?" he went on. "I don't know what sort of business they are in, but I guess they're well to do. Never happened to hear of them, eh?"

Perkins shook his head, and Pike went on:

"Maybe I'll write to Jim Cooley and ask him about these people. Jim 'd be likely to know 'em, I guess. Vice consul must be a pretty big bug over there."

"Law case?" asked Perkins suddenly.

"Sort of," answered Pike quietly. "don't know that I'd call it just that. Perhaps the trip would be a change anyway. And I'd like to see this man Hawcastle."

"Where does this Hawcastle live?" asked Perkins.

"England. Got a house he calls Hawcastle Hall."

"What about the K. and G.?" asked Perkins suddenly.

"I guess the K. and G. will have to wait awhile."

Perkins stood up resolutely and faced his friend.

"There's something wrong with you, Dan," he said emphatically. "There's something mighty wrong. It ain't like you to go running off this way unless there's something behind it."

He stopped, for Pike was whistling softly to himself, whistling like the man who is striving to recall some tune that is only half forgotten. Then he turned to Perkins.

"Remember that old tune, Tom," he asked—" 'Sweet Genevieve?' "

"Get out!" snapped Perkins. "That's a million years old. Why don't you keep up to date if you're going in for music? What do you care about 'Sweet Genevieve,' anyway?"

"I used to know somebody that sang it—once—long ago," said Pike quietly. "I used to hear John Simpson whistle it years before he died and left all that money to me for those two kids, Tom"—he turned suddenly and transfixed his friend with an accusatory finger—"what would you think of a guardian that doesn't guard?"

Perkins regarded him rebelliously.

"Depends on whose guardian he is and whether the guardees want him to attend to business or not. If you're talking about those kids of John Simpson's, I'd say you've done about all you could be expected to. You've kept the money together, haven't you? You've made it grow. You've sent it along regular—over there. What more could any one want?"

"Maybe that isn't enough."

"When are those two coming home?" went on Perkins. "Why don't they come back and spend John's money where it was made—at home?"

"I don't believe they're coming back right soon," replied Pike. "Things sort of seem to attract 'em over there. It must be a mighty fine place."

"Huh!" replied Perkins disgustedly. "What's the matter with Kokomo? Why don't that girl come back home and marry and settle down? Tell me that."

Pike smiled queerly, and his head seemed to shrink into his shoulders a trifle as he thrust his hands into his pockets.

"I guess she's going to marry and settle down, Tom, all right," he said slowly. "From what I hear she's going to marry one of those dukes or earls I was mentioning."

"Marry a foreigner!" cried Perkins, jumping [illegible] "Why, I thought

"Never mind what you thought, Tom," returned Pike. "I'm telling you she's going to be married. That's why I guess she won't be likely to come back to Kokomo. I guess Kokomo's a pretty poor looking place after some of those other places she's been seeing."

"How do you know?" asked Perkins, drawing his chair forward.

Pike lifted the letter he had folded up.

"I got this from her," he said simply. "Want to know what's in it?"

"Yes," answered Perkins.

"I can't let you read it, but it's from a place in Italy—Sorrento," he went on slowly, mouthing the unfamiliar word. "She says she's going to marry the Hon. Almeric St. Aubyn, heir to the ancient house of Hawcastle. And she wants to make a settlement on him. She can't marry without my consent, you know, Tom. If she does the money goes to the Kokomo Orphan asylum."

"Going to give your consent?" inquired Perkins.

"Don't know," answered Pike. "I've got to look the young man over first. I promised John Simpson I'd always look after her. That was when she was born. He said girls sometimes got into a tight place and they'd need some one to pull them out. Sounds good, doesn't it, Tom? Hon. Almeric St. Aubyn. Must be a member of congress or something over there. Maybe he'll be a senator some day. I can't object, Tom, if he's got a show to make a good living for her, can I? Say, what is a settlement, anyway? You don't suppose I've been keeping her short of money, do you, and she's had to borrow?"

Perkins shook his head gloomily.

"Don't ask me," he said. "I don't know anything about women. Why, Dan, I thought you'd mapped it out to marry"—

"That'll do for that," said Pike quickly. "We'll not talk about that now, Tom. Suppose you go down to Archie Toombs and ask him about Sorrento and how to get there and when a fellow gets there after he starts. I'm going to write a letter to Jim Cooley and get him to hunt up this Hawcastle."

When Perkins had gone Pike pulled open the letter and read it once again. It was the most formal of notes, beginning "Dear Mr. Pike" and ending "Yours sincerely." It contained a brief notice of the writer's intentions, or, rather, intentions in the event of a certain contretemps that to her seemed inevitable, and trusted that the end would meet with his approval.

He sighed as he folded it and returned it to its envelope.

"And that ends the guardianship," he muttered. "Wonder what I'm going to do with the old house now?"

From a drawer in his desk he pulled a framed picture that showed a delicately featured girl, with big, frank eyes and a wealth of light, curling hair that was half hidden by a big garden hat. There was a smile about the lips that seemed very engaging, and the muslin dress she wore had been accentuated in its simplicity by the art of the London photographer. Pike had preserved the picture, which had been given to him by old John Simpson the day before he died, and he sighed as he looked at it.

Then he laid it face down upon the desk and dropped his chin into his hand. It may have been an hour that he sat there, and in that time never a thought of his legal business crossed his mind. He was busy with a fanciful picture of an unknown city that in spite of his desire seemed to take on the aspects of a larger Kokomo, and in his fancy he could see a big, well knit young fellow bending eagerly over to look into the face of a girl, and he heard her call him Almeric.

"Must be a mighty fine man," he mused—"a fine big man—to capture her."

Then Perkins came in to ask if Pike wished to sail from New York for Havre in two days' time, stating that it would be necessary to leave that night if Pike wished to take passage on her.

"I'll go, Tom," he said. "Maybe you'll drop in here once in awhile and tell folks that ask for me that I'll be back in a month or so."

Then he sat down and wrote to Jim Cooley at London.

At 8 that night he stepped aboard an eastbound train and the next afternoon was in New York. Sorrento seemed a long way off, and it was with a heavy heart that he walked up the gangplank of La Provence.

CHAPTER II.

THE EXILES.

SIX years of life abroad, and these during the most impressionable period of their young lives, had left an indelible imprint upon the two young people.

Horace Simpson had taken to himself the manners of the Harrow and Oxford youth. He had eschewed the society of what he had learned, with parrot-like aptness, to call those "vulgar Americans" and had confined his social intercourse solely to such of the European "haut ton" as he could manage to scrape acquaintance with.

And this last was a somewhat uphill task, for, whatever else one may say about the English, they are inclined to view with very little favor the possessor of no other attribute than money. True, there are exceptions, and these but prove the rule.

Ethel, who had grown into a really beautiful young woman, had followed suit, so far as in her modest powers lay. Such of her school friends as would permit the half formed acquaintance to ripen she had retained. Such others of her own modest beginnings she had quietly but emphatically dropped. From plain democracy she had sought the antithesis, and the leap was all the more an earnest one because of its breadth.

The Simpsons—and they had added their mother's maiden name and linked it to the paternal nomenclature with a hyphen—had been deeply bitten with the aristocratic virus and after a long and arduous struggle had managed to meet Lady Creech.

This titled mondaine had the misfortune to be viciously short of patrimony and inordinately long of lineage, and, while her life of self denial had doubtless embittered her, she had a most inordinate value of birth and a distinct appreciation of cash; hence when it came her way to pick the Granger-Simpsons out of the slough of commonplace acquaintance she did it with a royal favor and for a stipulated consideration.

"Really, my dear Hawcastle"—she pronounced it as old sailors pronounce "fo'c's'tle"—she was wont to say, "really, of course, they are quite impossible, but the girl is an adaptable little thing, and I may be able to make something of her in time, while the boy—ah, I fear I shall have to leave him to you and St. Aubyn."

"Do as you like," replied the Earl of Hawcastle, with some choler, "but keep them out of my way as much as possible. I positively will not be badgered by these unbaked colonists."

"One might stand a quantity of badgering, Hawcastle, for £300,000," at which the genial earl would squirm nervously.

At any rate, the Simpson children began to be seen in the second stratum of London society and met endless numbers of the shopworn nobility, but, sad to relate, never one of the truly respectable. To those who know their London there are several layers of nobility, and the layer the ordinary individual meets, who has no social prestige to begin with, is composed of that peculiar class that lends its name to doubtful directorates, to queer prospectuses, to struggling milliners with an eye on the main chance and who gladly extend unlimited credit to their patrons in return for modest and well put advertisement.

Strangely enough, the Hawcastle-Creech combination did not drag the willing Simpsons into the glittering presence of the real set.

On the contrary, with a somewhat dog in the manger policy, they awakened both the earl and his sister-in-law to the fact that they wished no sharers in those American dollars that John Simpson had sweated his brow for, and as a consequence they proposed a little trip—a quiet, ante-season trip—to Sorrento, where not a guest would disturb them and where matters might be given a chance to right themselves.

And there, strangely enough, the Simpsons met the Comtesse de Champigny and were quite delighted to find the gifted and brilliant Frenchwoman an intimate of the earl's. The second morning of their arrival the gay comtesse put in an appearance and with a promptitude that was astonishing took young Horace under the widowly wing and marked him for her own. And that same morning the noble earl took his equally noble son into the shrubbery and spoke to him.

"You've got to do it, St. Aubyn," he said. "The family honor is at stake. For heaven's sake, marry the little fool! What if her scurrilous name is Simpson? You can make her forget it. We are stony broke, my good boy, and she has a hundred and fifty thou. That will keep us going for another year or two, and if Helene can capture the young ass, Horace, I'll force her to divide with me."

"But it's such a beastly bore, governor," drawled Almeric St. Aubyn, and he flicked idly at the rhododendron bushes with his stick.

He was a pale, washed out youth, with an inimitable drawl and a shimmering of intellect that might, if it had been given an opportunity, have resolved itself into a good working imitation of a brain. To his friends he was "that hopeless ass" and to his enemies and debtors—of the latter not a few—"that beastly bounder, St. Aubyn."

"You see, governor," the honorable Almeric went on, "it isn't as if I cared for the little gal. I'm a queer beggar,

"The family honor is at stake."

you know, and it's fearfully rough on a chap to pretend interest in such a little vulgarian. Of course I know we're awfully hard up and all that sort of thing, but"—

His noble father seized him roughly by the arm.

"You don't have to live with her, you know," he said savagely. "It will be easy enough to make it so unpleasant for the minx that she'll be glad to go back to the States, and she can't get back a penny. We'll have that tight enough."

The Hon. Almeric laughed.

"Oh, all right, old chap!" he drawled. "I'll lift her to the infernal seventh heaven, or whatever you call it. Don't expect me to moon over her, though."

And that compact being settled, the earl went off for his morning walk along the cliff and Almeric to keep his engagement for a morning ride with Ethel Granger-Simpson.

CHAPTER III.

IN DISGUISE.

AN hour later Mariano, the maitre d'hotel of the Regina Margherita, stepped out upon the terrace and began to lay a cloth upon one of the small round tables that stood close to the white marble balustrade. On the other side of the wall could be heard the mandolins and guitars of the fishermen, and Mariano glanced up crossly as the song arose upon the morning air.

"Silenzio!" he cried, and for a moment the music died down.

Mariano went at once to the table upon which he had spread the cloth and placed silverware and delicate china upon it, and he was thus engaged when Michele, the commissionnaire, appeared at the top of a flight of marble steps that led into the eastern wing of the hotel, fronting on the terrace.

"Here is M. Ribiere to see you, sir," he said softly, with a backward glance over his shoulder, and Mariano straightened up instantly, with a smile of welcome, for Ribiere was an old and valued accomplice in the gentle art of soft Italian legal stealing.

A tall, alert young Frenchman, clad in an English walking suit of gray and carrying a portfolio beneath his arm, ran lightly down the steps and approached the maitre d'hotel.

"Ah, Mariano!" he cried as he approached.

The genial Mariano bowed gracefully and rubbed his flexible hands together.

"M. Ribiere!" he chattered gayly. "This is one of the days of days"—

The music burst forth again, and he whirled about angrily in the direction of the lemon grove.

"Silenzio!" he cried, with waving hands. "Silenzio!" and turned again to Ribiere. Michele, with a glance at them, went back within the hotel.

Ribiere turned a warning glance toward the hotel and whispered in Italian:

"Let us speak Engleesh. Fewer understand."

Mariano again bowed and spread out his hands in assent.

"I hope m'sieu still occupy the exalt' position of secretar' to monseigneur the gran' duke."

The Frenchman walked quickly to one of the little wicker tea tables that were scattered about, sat down and opened his portfolio.

"We will not mention either the name or the rank of my employer," he said gravely. "There are reasons of state. You understand?"

The maitre d'hotel threw up his hands in despair, and his round eyes rolled heavenward.

"Again incognito! Every year he come to thees hotel for two, three or four day, but always incognito!"

Ribiere paid little attention to him, but opened a notebook and removed a fountain pen from his pocket. Mariano shrugged his shoulders and went on setting the table, then stopped and looked up.

"Each time we lose the honor to have it known," he went on. "In Naples, everywhere, are reech American peoples that would give large pourboire to mingle with his highness"—

The secretary lifted a warning finger.

"Have I not said it is to be incognito, and yet you prate of highness in the first breath. Would you wish he shall withdraw his patronage?" He looked staringly at the man opposite him. "See that you do not offend again." He consulted his watch.

"He comes in his machine from Naples. As on former visits, all is to be as before. No one must guess. To all he must be Herr Grollerhagen"—

"Herr Grollerhagen!" ejaculated Mariano quickly and with astonishment in his round features. "Herr Grollerhagen!"

"He wishes to be known as a German," went on M. Ribiere. "It pleases him to be so thought."

Mariano stood lost in contemplative astonishment.

"What a man," he sighed—"of caprice, eccentrique, so wonderful! Ha!"

The secretary smiled in a superior manner.

"You have said it. Last night he talked by chance to a strange North American in the hotel at Napoli. Apparently he is much interested. Today he has that stranger for companion in his automobile. I remonstrate. What use? He laugh for one-half the hour."

Again the maitre d'hotel remained lost in astonishment. For some moments he stood with the napkin in his hands gazing out over the wonderful bay that lay before the hotel.

"He is not like those cousin of his in Petersburg and Moscowa," he said at last, with a touch of awe in his tones. "And yet, though monseigneur is so good and generoso, will not the anarchist strike against the name of even royalty himself? You have not that fear?"

The secretary shivered in the soft warm air and seized his companion by the wrist.

"I have!" he said quickly. "He has not. I take what precautions I can secretly from him. But of what use? You have few patrons?"

A smile crossed Mariano's face, and he shrugged his shoulders expressively.

"It is yet so early in the season. Those poor musician"—he pointed beyond the gates—"they wait always at every gate to play when they shall see any one coming, but of late they are disappoint. Within, with us in the hotel, are but seex people, all of one party!"

An expression of relief crossed the Frenchman's face, and he opened his notebook quickly.

"Good!" he murmured. "Who are they?"

Mariano scratched his head with one ruminative finger and bent his brows upon the table in thought.

"There is milor', an English excellency—the Earl of Hawcastle; there is also his son, the excellency honorable Almeric St. Aubyn; there is Miladi Creeshe, an English miladi, who is sister-in-law to Milor' Hawcastle."

Quickly Ribiere jotted down the names in his book and then looked up.

"Three English," he said. "Good so far. Those English are safe."

Mariano went on:

"There is an American signorina, Mees Granger-Seempsone. Miladi Creeshe travel with her to be chaperon." Here he became enthusiastic as the memory of sundry pieces of gold and silver wakened his keen thoughts. "She is young, generoso; she give money to every one; she is multa bella, so pretty, weeth charm"—

"You mean this Lady Creeshe?" interrupted the Frenchman, with a puzzled frown.

"No, no, no!" cried Mariano in horrified amazement. "Miladi Creeshe is ole lady and does not hear so well; quite deaf; no pourboires; nothing. I speak of the young American lady, Mees Granger-Seempsone, who the English honorable son of Milor' Hawcastle wishes to espouse, I think."

Ribiere wrote rapidly in his notebook and without looking up said:

"Who else is there?"

"There is the brother of Mees Granger-Seempsone, a young gentleman from also North America. He make the eyes all the day at another lady, who is of the party, a French lady, Comtesse de Champigny. Ha, eet amuse me!" And he burst into a respectful titter.

"Always incognito!"

HE WANTED OUT

How Gladstone's Name Was Used at a Crowded Meeting.

It won't be long until the political campaign will be under way and the old-fashioned mass meeting will be the order of things with all parties. Political meetings are productive of many amusing incidents some times they are largely attended and again the audience is so small as to be discouraging to anybody but a candidate As a rule one is told that such meetings are "crowded to the doors"

From London there has drifted a story of a mass meeting where the crowd was so great that every seat was filled and standing room was at a premium. Persons on the outside fought in vain to get inside, while many in the hall struggled to get out only to give it up in despair. One of the speakers was a very serious dry talker and the audience was each minute becoming more and more disgusted. Finally, a man, seated in the very front row, stood up and asked:

"That's all right, but what did Gladst'n sye in 1879?"

Those nearest him grabbed his arms and quickly forced the interrupter back into his seat. Apparently again irritated by the speaker's remarks the man, a few minutes later, jumped to his feet and cried out:

"Yes, but what did Gladst'n sye in 1879?"

Again he was forced back into his seat A third time he jumped to his feet and with voice quivering with emotion, asked:

"What did Gladst'n sye in 1879?"

At a signal a squad of police made a flying wedge through the crowded hall and seizing the man led him out and into the street. It required fifteen or twenty minutes for the police to get through the crowd and out again. Ejected from the hall the man displayed no resentment, whereupon one of the policeman unable to restrain his curiosity, stepped up and asked:

"Sye, my man, its none of my business, but what did Gladst'n sye in 1879?"

"Nothin' that I know of," calmly replied the man, "I wanted to get out of the bloomin' meetin' and I knew I never could get through the crowd alone."

Polishing a Diamond.

The polishing of a diamond is a very slow process, because of the great hardness of the material; besides this, the work must be frequently interrupted to allow the disk to cool out after it has become overheated by friction. Each time a new facet is to be cut the diamond must be removed from the dop and reset at another angle, and the diamond cutter trusts to his eye alone to guide him in this delicate adjustment, although in the case of very small diamonds a magnifying glass is necessary. The skill shown in placing the stone in the heated metal, sometimes with the bare hand, is surprising. The regular brilliant has fifty-six facets, besides the table and the collet—thirty-two above the girdle and twenty-four below—but as eight facets are first formed, both above and below, each of these being recut into three or four smaller ones, there are considerably more than fifty-six separate surfaces to be cut.—Dr. George F. Kunz in Century.

Qualities of the Topaz.

The name of the precious stone inserted in the ring of Gyges has not been handed down to us, but it is probable that it was the topaz, whose wonders Philostrates recounts in the life of Apollonius. An attribute of the sun and of fire, the ancients called it the gold magnet, as it was credited with the power of attracting that metal, indicating its veins and discovering the treasures. Heliodorus in his story of Theagenes and Charicles says that the topaz saves from fire all those who wear it and that Charicles was preserved by a topaz from the fiery vengeance of Arsaces, queen of Ethiopia. This stone was one of the first talismans that Theagenes possessed in Egypt. The topaz at present symbolizes Christian virtues—faith, justice, temperance, gentleness, clemency.—Paris Figaro.

Speculative Life Insurance.

A mania for speculative insurances on the lives of public personages prevailed in England during the eighteenth century. Warren Hastings, the pretender, the rebel lords or the unfortunate Admiral Byng answered equally the purpose of speculation, and there were also regular quotations on the lives of notorious highwaymen. Sir Robert Walpole at one period of his career, when his life was endangered by popular tumults, was insured for many thousands, and when George II. fought at Dettingen 25 per cent was paid against his return. Such speculative insurances were, however, largely checked by the gambling act of 1774, which made insurable interest a necessary condition for a valid policy.—Argonaut.

This Vale of Tears.

The news that science had at length discovered the means of destroying the germ of the last ill which flesh was heir to called forth rapturous rejoicings throughout the world.

"Henceforth perfect health will reign universally!" people everywhere exclaimed and gave themselves up to congratulations.

But that was not to be. In the very next day's paper was the account of somebody having invented a microscope so powerful as to reveal a lot more germs, which meant, of course, that it would be no time at all until everybody was sick again.—Puck.

Chocolate.

Although the "drink called chocolate" did not appear in England until 1657 its restorative properties soon became generally known. Thus, on May 24, 1661, after an evening of carousing, Pepys "worked in the morning, with my head in a sad taking through the last night's drink, which I am very sorry for; so rose and went out with Mr. Creed to drink our morning draft, which he did give me in chocolate to settle my stomach."

Life

The poet's exclamation: "O Life! I feel thee bounding in my veins," is a joyous one. Persons that can rarely or never make it, in honesty to themselves, are among the most unfortunate. They do not live, but exist, for to live implies more than to be. To live is to be well and strong—to arise feeling equal to the ordinary duties of the day, and to retire not overcome by them—to feel life bounding in the veins. A medicine that has made thousands of people, men and women, well and strong, has accomplished a great work, bestowing the richest blessings, and that medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. The weak, rundown, or debilitated, from any cause, should not fail to take it. It builds up the whole system, changes existence into life, and makes life more abounding. We are glad to say these words in its favor to the readers of our columns.

Bryan on the Water Wagon.

Bryan now announces his intention to make war on the liquor interests in order to keep the Democratic party from being controlled by them. This sudden change of attitude novel for a Northern Democrat, has not greatly surprised the American people Reading the signs of the times. Mr. Bryan recognizes the fact that the great leaders of his party, who have followed him thrice to defeat are now eager to place heir standard in his hand again. Mr. Bryan being nothing if not resourceful, his stand for virtual prohibition can have but one meaning. He realizes the absurdity of announcing that he will take a nomination from the Democratic party for the fourth time and lead it once more to disaster. But as he feels that he must have another try for the presidency he is casting about to get the nomination from the rapidly growing Prohibition party. Those who may doubt that Mr Bryan is willing to tie up with the the Prohibitionists should remember that it is not hope of the presidency that attracts him and keeps him active in political affairs so much as the profitable publicity which he enjoys from posing as a candidate It was his remarkable gift of gaining publicity which lifted Mr Bryan from poverty and obscurity into national prominence and made him one of the wealthiest men in the State. His capacity for securing free advertising drives the ablest press agent to despair. By means of it Mr. Bryan is enabled to derive from his speeches, his lectures, and his contributions to the press an income of about $100,000 per year—much more than the salary of the President of the United States.—From Leslie's Weekly.

NO TIE VOTES FOR HIM

Typical Irish "Bull" in Fixing up the Size of a Committee.

Everybody loves an Irishman for his wit and humor There is a good laugh in an Irishman any day in the week. Some time ago a meeting was being held to consider public questions and it was proposed that a committee be named to carry out the instructions of the delegates. For some unexplained reason a no dispute arose as to how many persons should be placed on the committee. Feeling was being displayed on all sides and no one seemed able to bring order out of chaos. Finally an Irishman, seated in the rear of the hall, stood up and remarked:

"Mr. Chairman, I would say that we make this committee a committee of fifteen, so that when there's a tie vote there will be a majority of one."

A roar of laughter greeted the suggestion and by the time it subsided all the evidence of bad feeling had disappeared and the meeting was able to adjourn with everybody satisfied Incidentally, the Irishman won his point, just as an Irishman invariably does.

JUDGE ROBERT VON MOSCHZISKER, of Phila.

Auditor General.
A. E NISSON, of Erie.

State Treasurer.
J A. STOBER, of Lancaster.

County.

Jury Commissioner,
JOHN D. DECKER, of Potter Twp.

—HELLO!

—WATCH us grow.

—KEEP your eye on "The Republican."

—A good word for Centre county will be a good word for all of us. Let's root for the home team.

—LAWRENCE COUNTY Republicans have indorsed Deputy Secretary of Agriculture A. L. Martin for Governor.

—BEING a right smart lawyer himself Senator Sisson will be able to keep pretty close tabs on corporation lawyers after he becomes Auditor General. Sometimes they need watching.

—WITH Stober for State Treasurer and former Speaker McClain and other old-time followers of Elkin whooping it up for the ticket it will be pretty difficult for the Democratic orator to find anything but Republican harmony, which means Democratic despair.

—THE new management of "The Republican" respectfully requests that subscribers communicate with us if there is any delay in the delivery of this paper to you. Its our business to see that you receive "The Republican" promptly and each week in the year. If your paper is delayed, send us word. We will find the cause and remedy it.

—SEEMS like old times with Bellefonte sporting a baseball club and a schedule of league games arranged. Was it last week or fifteen or twenty years ago that we had the "Flemings" and every youngster in the town thought them the greatest ball players in the world. A little touch of baseball makes the whole world rub elbows and feel glad it is living.

—CENTRE COUNTY Republicans have but one local candidate to elect in November. It is all the more important that this one candidate be elected to keep the party lines intact and insure continued party success. The election of John D. Decker, of Potter Township, for Jury Commissioner, will pave the way for victory for the next Republican county ticket.

—SENATOR SISSON, of Erie, is a splendid choice for Auditor General. In his many years of service at Harrisburg no word of suspicion has ever been raised against him. Rugged honesty has marked his entire career. Speaks pretty well for the man when he is renominated by all parties for the State Senate. This is what the people of Erie county did last year for Senator Sisson.

—WHEN a man is chosen by one family after another in his home community to act as executor and trustee, and this continues over a period of a quarter of a century, it is pretty good evidence that those who know him best believe in his honesty and integrity. This, in a nutshell, is the story of Jeremiah A. Stober's life in his home community in Lancaster county. He has been trusted with the money of his home people. He can be trusted with the money of the people in the State Treasury.

—EVERY friend of State Chairman Andrews is glad that he was re-elected. His wide acquaintance in the state, his genial smile and hearty handshake make him an admirable chairman. Of course the Democrats throw bricks at him but chairman Adrews somehow seems able to worry along and roll up Republican majorities year after year. Perhaps if the Democrats would steal him and put him in charge of their headquarters, the Democratic organization in Pennsylvania might not give so much evidence of being dead from the hips up.

—THE special election, on August 17, to vote on the question: "Shall the school board have authority to borrow $33,000 additional to complete the new school building?" should receive the earnest consideration and attention of every taxpayer in Bellefonte. There is no duty more sacred than the education of our children. They must have proper facilities. So long as the money is well spent and within reason, there can be no improvements more beneficial to our community than to plan for the education of the present and future generations. The old stone building has been razed. There must be a new building. Shall it be incomplete or shall it be one that will meet all requirements in years to come. This is what the taxpayer must decide at the special election.

URGE COUNCILS TO ABOLISH FIREWORKS

Citizens Will Present Petition at Next Meeting.

ACCIDENT TO M'CLURE

Twelve-year-old Boy Terribly Injured by Giant Firecracker—Sentiment Overwhelming for Ordinance to Protect Children in Future.

Prompted by the frightful accident to twelve-year-old Thomas McClure, on the evening of July 5th, many citizens of Bellefonte have inaugurated a movement to abolish fireworks within the borough limits. A petition calling on the Chief Burgess and Councils for an ordinance prohibiting the sale or use of fireworks has been signed by several hundred prominent citizens. It will be presented to Councils when they meet, on Monday night of next week.

There should be no hesitation on the part of councils in passing such an ordinance. It will be a blessing to every child in Bellefonte. All the fireworks in the world are not worth the life of one little child.

That "Tommy" McClure was not killed outright by the explosion of a giant firecracker on the evening of the "Fourth" seems almost a miracle. As it was his little body was terribly torn and bruised and for days he hovered between life and death. He was hurt while at play with other boys near the Bush House. So long as the danger exists the victim may be any boy or girl of that age, or even older.

When Councils come to consider this matter let them think of "Tommy" McClure. Let Councils think of the anguish of the little boy's mother as she wept over his torn and bleeding body and feared that each moment would be the last. Let every member of Councils who is a father stop and think of the distress and misery that would be in his home today had his boy or his girl been in "Tommy" McClure's place when the accident occurred.

The hearts of the mothers and fathers of Bellefonte are behind this movement to make the "Fourth" of July in the future free from danger to all children.

The petition which will be submitted to the Chief Burgess and Councils was drafted by Judge Beaver. It wisely and justly makes provision for our merchants who sell fireworks in order that they may be protected against loss. They should have ample time in which to dispose of all unsold fireworks. The petition was circulated by G. R. Spigelmyer, and, we are informed, but one citizen refused to sign it, whereas in one day 117 others only too willingly attached their signatures. Later many others signed it. This overwhelming sentiment should guide Councils in their action when the matter is officially before them.

Vote on School Loan.

ing only 20x26, the sanitation in and about the building after providing the best possible under the circumstances, was not and could not be made good by reason of the manner in which the building was constructed. The building was moreover below the level of the streets, and as the streets are soon to be raised in the making of a state road it would have been more in the mud than ever. To have raised the building and then remodeled it, would have been been, to say the least very risky business, because the rear wall was far out of plumb and likely to fall out at any time. Therefore on the suggestion of some of the heaviest taxpayers of the borough which coincided with the best judgment of the board it was believed best to take the building down, and it was done.

The quarters of the schools in the midway are more at fault than were those in the stone building. The schools in this building are there only because there was no room in either of the other buildings, and better room, and accommodations could not be obtained anywhere else. The people of the borough are fully aware of the very formidable complaint made to the board against continuing school in this building.

The High School has entirely outgrown the provisions made for it in 1887 which were intended, at the time, to be but a temporary location. The students in this school are seated in three different rooms, in which recitations are conducted all the time, and it is absolutely necessary to provide more room for this school.

On December 3 1906, the Ministerium of the town addressed to the board a communication, praying the school board, "To build a new school building in the North Ward, stating that they believed the present building to be wholly inadequate to the present needs of the pupils from the stand point of comfort, convenience and health." The physicians and citizens of the town have been much more vigorous and persistent in their condemnation of the evils which they said came from these buildings.

From all this it is clear that there was but one thing to do, and that was to build anew. And now fellow citizens we are sure you would not have us erect a poor, weak, unsafe building, or one that would soon become so. We are getting one hundred cents for every dollar put into this building.

The Act of Assembly of April 22 1905, requires that the board shall provide a system of indirect heating and ventilating by means of which each class room, shall be supplied with fresh air at the rate of not less than 30 cubic feet per minute for each pupil, and to maintain an average temperature of 70 degrees Fahrenheit in the coldest weather. These requirements which are made in the interests, comfort and health of the pupils while in school, make the heating plant for the building quite costly, but to fail to fully carry out the provisions of this act of Assembly, would be a violation of the oath of office which each of the directors has taken.

A WRONG IMPRESSION.

Many of our citizens are under the impression that the debt of the borough will prevent the school district from contracting a debt such as the board is asking for. This is clearly a misunderstanding. The borough, and the school district are as different and separate as different individuals, and each exercising the authority given them by law can contract a debt to the extent of seven percent of the assessed value of the taxable property in the borough, providing they do not exceed two percent of the assessed valuation in any one loan, which they ask the electors in the district to assent to.

THE BUILDING.

As planned under the direction of the board the building could be cheapened, perhaps to the extent of five to seven thousand dollars, by flooring, the first floor hall with wood, inplace of concrete, using wood for wainscoating, in the halls in place of brick, by using rubber for a roof in place of good slate, and by using wood in place of concrete in the floor of the basement. But considering the security and protection these things give to your children, and in the face of the tremenduous loss of young life which occurred a few years ago in a public school building in Collingswood, near Cleveland Ohio, the board is convinced that you prefer the substantial, practically fireproof, well lighted, heated and ventilated building to a cheap makeshift, and that in view of this you will cheerfully authorize the increase of the debt of the district in the sum asked. What is done, and to be done is entirely for the benefit of the children of the citizens of the borough. The board therefore ask that on the seventeenth day of August, 1909, you will record your vote in favor of this proposition.

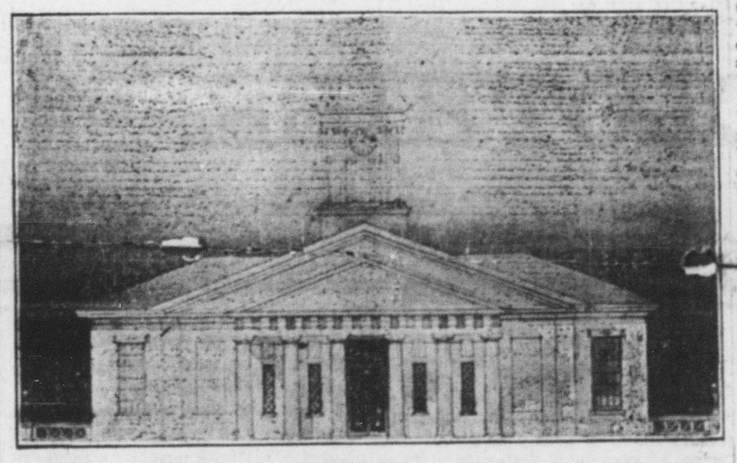
J. K. BARNHART, Sec'y. H. C. QUIGLEY Pres.

Bids for heating and ventilating the new building were received from the American Heating & Ventilating Co.; H. R. Keeler Co.; Snyder & Raub, of Philadelphia.; Bellefonte Steam & Gas Co, and A. R. Schad. All bids were high. The contract will be let, probably this week.

TEACHERS RE-ELECTED.

The school board has chosen the following teachers for the public schools for the coming year: J. E. Wagner, supervising principal; Professor Auman, principal of the High School; Miss Ella Levy, assistant principal of High School; Misses Maude Harshbarger, May Taylor, H. Mary Underwood, Jennie Longacre, Helen Crissman and Bessie Dorworth, for the new building; Misses Gertrude Taylor, Daisy Barnes, Anna McCaffrey and Alice Dorworth, for the Brick building, and Miss Carrie Weaver for the midway school.

Two places remain to be filled at the High School. One is that held last year by Ward Fleming, who removes to Harrisburg. The other is a new position, which will be devoted chiefly to instruction in English.



OUR REMODELED COURT HOUSE.

NEW FORD IN TOWN

Frank Naginey Drives It From Philadelphia Without a Mishap.

Trim as a race horse is the new Ford 20-horse power runabout which Frank Naginey drove to Bellefonte from Philadelphia early last week. For some time after he arrived he was kept busy taking friends for a trial spin. None but an up-to-date car could have met the demand made on Frank but he was able to give everybody who wished a chance to see how the new machine worked. The proudest man on each trip was Frank, himself, and he had every reason to be elated. The car is one of the neatest we have seen for many a day. Editor Charles Kurtz, of the "Centre Democrat" accompanied Frank on the trip.

I Cannot Praise Pe-ru-na Highly Enough for the Good it Has Done Me.

MRS. JOHN HOPP.

MRS. JOHN HOPP, Webster Ave., Glendale, L. I., N. Y., writes:

"I have been suffering for the past 2 years with many symptoms incident to my age, also catarrh and indigestion. I was weak and discouraged, had no ambition, could not sleep at night, and lost greatly in weight.

"I tried other remedies, but with no success, until I commenced to take Peruna. I now feel better in every respect, can sleep well, and have gained in weight. I cannot praise Peruna highly enough for the good it has done me.

"If any women are suffering as I did, I would advise them to try Peruna and convince themselves. Peruna has done me good. I know by my experience that it is worth its weight in gold to any one who needs it.

"I also took Manalin, for constipation, in connection with Peruna, and I found it helped me where other laxatives failed."

Now Well of Catarrh.

Miss Malisa Jolley, Parmele, N. C., writes: "I have been taking your Peruna, and can say that I am well of the catarrh.

"I thank you for your kindness and your advice."

GALA DAY AT PORT

Citizens Celebrated the "Fourth" in Old Fashioned Style.

Monday, July 5, was celebrated in good, old fashioned style by the citizens of Port Matilda and vicinty, being the 133d anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. For weeks active preparations had been made to properly celebrate the day.

Promptly at 10 o'clock in the morning a parade was formed, headed by Budd Thompson, chief marshall, with about twenty-five aides on horseback. Leading the procession was the Howard cornet band, followed by the several Sunday schools, the Order of Odd Fellows, Eagles and other organizations and societies.

At the conclusion of the parade a large crowd assembled about the speakers' stand to listen to the addresses of the day. The first speaker was Rev. Merrill H. Ake, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Port Matilda, who spoke in an earnest and enthusiastic manner of the causes leading up to the Declaration of Independence. His address was full of valuable information. He concluded by reading, in a forcible manner the Declaration of Independence.

Clement Dale, Esq., of Bellefonte, was the second speaker, taking up the line of historical events subsequent to the Declaration of Independence. He traced the wonderful advance of the country from the close of the Revolutionary war down to the present time; what had been done by the patriotic men of the nation to establish American independence, and what had been done by succeeding generations to preserve our liberties. He concluded his interesting address by earnestly urging the proper education of the young men and young women of the present generation as to the necessity of patriotically preserving the liberties of this country.

The third speaker was Rev. William Beach, of the United Brethrenn Church, of Port Matilda. Born on English soil, but coming to America at an early age, he has imbibed all the zeal and devotion to American institutions. He certainly delivered a fine address.

The several speeches were interspersed with music by the Howard band and by a well trained choir, led by Edna Reese. After dinner a fantastic parade, base ball game and other amusements occupied the attention of the large gathering, while in the evening there was a grand display of fire-works.

Too much credit cannot be given the citizens of Port Matilda for the manner in which they so fittingly observed the day, and the good order that universally prevailed. The occasion was made one long to be remembered by all who were present.

Philip Shoemaker Hurt.

Philip Shoemaker, met with an accident on Friday of last week which might have resulted in more serious injuries than were sustained. As it was he was badly bruised from head to foot. Fortunately no bones were broken. While riding on East Linn Street his pony slipped and Philip was thrown heavily to the ground. He was picked up and carried into the Richards home. An examination disclosed that he was severely shaken up and bruised, and quite a few bandages were necessary to dress his injuries. As soon as he had recovered sufficiently to stand the trip he was removed to his home.

BUCKHOUT--KINSLOE

Brilliant Wedding at State College for Prominent Young Couple.

A brilliant wedding of unusual interest was that at State College, at 7 o'clock last evening, at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. William A. Buckhout, East Beaver Avenue, when their elder daughter, Margaret White, was united in marriage to Charles Lambert Kinsloe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kinsloe, of Lock Haven. Her only sister, Carolyn Reed Buckhout, attended her as maid of honor, and her two bridesmaids, Miss Hilda Hammer, of Omaha, Nebraska, and Miss Mabelle Farrington, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., were classmates of the bride at Vassar. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Rev Samuel Martin performed the ceremony, using the beautiful Episcopal service.

Mrs. Kinsloe is a recent graduate of Vassar College, while Mr. Kinsloe is a graduate of Penna. State, and is now connected with the School of Engineering of that college. Both young people are well known at State College, being prominent in social circles, and their hosts of friends are glad to know that they will make that place their home after an absence of several weeks.

Col. Spangler to Speak.

Colonel J. L. Spangler has been selected as one of the speakers at the "Old Home Day" reunion of Cambria county citizens, who at one time or another were residents of Centre and Clearfield counties. The reunion will be held today at Sunset Park, Cambria county. Lieutenant Governor Robert S. Murphy and A. H. Woodward, the latter of Clearfield, also are scheduled to deliver addresses.

Weak Heart Action

There are certain nerves that control the action of the heart. When they become weak, the heart action is impaired. Short breath, pain around heart, choking sensation, palpitation, fluttering, feeble or rapid pulse, and other distressing symptoms follow. Dr. Miles Heart Cure is a medicine especially adapted to the needs of these nerves and the muscular structure of the heart itself. It is a strengthening tonic that brings speedy relief. Try it.

"For years I suffered with what I thought was stomach trouble, when the doctors told me I had heart trouble. I had tried many remedies, when the Dr. Miles' almanac came into my hands, and I concluded to try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I have taken three bottles, and now I am not suffering at all. I am cured and this medicine did it. I write this in the hope that it will attract the attention of others who suffer as I did."
MRS. D. BARRON,
804 Main St., Covington, Ky.

Your druggist sells Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and we authorize him to return price of first bottle (only) if it fails to benefit you.

Howard.

During the first half of 1909 Washington Camp No 518 P. O. S. of A., enjoyed an era of unprecedented prosperity. On account of many of the members moving away and others being dropped for non payment of dues the membership had decreased to about thirty Seeing that something must be done to recruit the ranks the members went to work with determination and in six month more than doubled the membership, 45 new names being added to the roll. The room over the postoffice that they had occupied for so long would not accommodate the lodge and larger quarters were looked for. The commodious room over Kline & Wolf's store was secured and the camp is now comfortably located in their new home On the last meeting night in June the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: President Arthur Yandes; Vice president, Elias Ertel, master of forms, J. Z. Loder; conductor, Frank Williams; inspector, T. J. Moore; guard, Harry Bechdel; delegate to state camp, J. S. Holter; trustee, Charles Pletcher.

ALL WANTED JOBS.

How Lincoln Successfully Squelched Two Office Seekers.

Some new and old stories were told in the hotel lobbies at Harrisburg during the week of the Republican State convention. One night at the Senate Hotel where Senator Penrose, Senator Oliver and State Chairman Andrews had headquarters a group of delegates were discussing the "situation." The conversation drifted to the subject of appointments to office and the measures sometimes resorted to in getting rid of applicants who imagine they are entitled to recognition and proceed to make themselves a nuisance dreaded by all political leaders. One of the best yarns spun was that of how Lincoln once squelched two men who called at the White House and applied for appointements to choice foreign posts. Their only claim to recognition was that some years previously, they met Lincoln when he happened to stop over for the day in their home town. Old as is the story it will bear repeating.

Lincoln was amazed at the audacity of the two men, said the delegate in telling the story, but listened with patience and finally said: "One time, in the days when the King's retinue was incomplete unless it contained a prophet, there was a man attached to a court who professed to be able to forecast storms with unfailing accuracy. The truth of the matter was that he was a fraud and knew nothing about weather. One day the King and Queen and others of the court planned a trip into the country. With the assurance of the forecaster that the day would be clear they started forth bedecked in costly robes of brilliant colors.

"When but a few miles out there was every indication of rain, but the King heroically continued on. Suddenly from out of a cloud of dust there appeared a man riding a donkey at a gallop. Racing up to the King the man jumped to the ground and implored him to retire at once to the palace, saying that a terrible storm was threatened.

"Reluctantly the King abandoned the journey and the party was almost home when the storm broke and the costly robes were ruined. In wrath the King discharged the official forecaster and installed in the position the man with the donkey, for several days all went well and finally the King wanted to plan another excursion. Sending for the new forecaster he inquired. "What will the weather be today?"

Much confused the man explained that he knew nothing about the weather.

"But you were able to forecast the storm when we met you on the plains a few days ago. How was that?"

"'Twasn't me, 'twas my old donkey," replied the man. I knew the way he had his ears laid back that a devil of a storm was coming."

"The King" concluded Lincoln, "discharged the man and installed the donkey as forecaster for the court, and from that day to this every jackass in the land has been a candidate for office."

Standing Together.

Edward Coyle, the Washington newspaper man who died suddenly several weeks ago, was a whole-souled, genial Irishman. He enjoyed nothing more than to tell stories. Irish stories were his hobby. One night Coyle and a number of other newspapers correspondents were sitting in the old Iriquois Club, and Irish stories were flying thick and fast. Assuming an air of heart-felt sorrow Coyle launched into an impressive defence of the Irish as a race, and concluding he said:

"The Irish are God's people; none better in the world. Irishmen have made fame for themselves the world over. Their greatest misfortune has been their failure to stand together. The only time two Irishmen ever stand together is when they are standing on some other Irishman's face."

Everyone would be benefited by taking Foley's Orino Laxative for stomach and liver trouble and habitual constipation. Startled the Tailor.

A London tailor was once measuring Dr. Parker, who had a quaint sense of humor, for an overcoat, when suddenly the doctor broke forth in his most sepulchral voice:

"Can you measure the ineffable?"

The assistant looked up and saw that the doctor was extremely grave. He said:

"I beg your pardon, sir."

The doctor raised both his hands with a grand upward sweep and said:

"Can you measure the ineffable? Can you comprehend the infinite?"

"We'll make you a nice coat, sir," returned the puzzled assistant. Tapping the doctor's shin, he said:

"That's about the length, sir?"

"Longer!" ejaculated the doctor in determined tones.

"There, sir?"

"Longer!" thundered the great man.

The tailor remonstrated. As a technical professional he could give points on tailoring to any preacher that ever wore a head.

"If you have it any longer, you won't be able to walk," he remarked conclusively.

The doctor looked on him compassionately and, once more extending his arms toward the skies, said confidentially:

"I don't want to walk; I want to soar!"

Lundyfoot and His Snuff.

The shop of a Dublin tobacconist named Lundyfoot was destroyed by fire. While he was gazing dolefully into the smoldering ruins he noticed that his poorer neighbors were gathering the snuff from the canister. He tested the snuff for himself and discovered that the fire had largely improved its pungency and aroma. This was a hint worth profiting by. He secured another shop, built a lot of ovens, subjected the snuff to a heating process, gave the brand a name and in a few years became rich through an accident which he at first thought had ruined him. It was Lundyfoot to whom the great orator and wit, John Philpot Curran, suggested the celebrated motto to the coat of arms emblazoned by the successful tobacconist upon the panels of his carriage, a motto which had its meaning in Latin and English and was significant in both, "Quid Rides" (who laughs). "Quid," it may be mentioned, was a nickname bestowed on tobacconists at the time, owing to a prominent article in their stock of trade.

How She Did It.

"So she refused you?"

"That's the impression I received."

"Didn't she actually say no?"

"No, she didn't. All she said was 'Ha, ha, ha!'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sleepy Sermons.

"Some men preach," said Sydney Smith, "as if they thought sin is to be taken out of a man as Eve was taken out of Adam, by casting him into a profound slumber."

Wade not in unknown waters.—German Proverb.

She Knew the Day Well.

A poor little faded woman had been brought into court as witness in a case involving very important issues. The entire case depended on the fact that a paper had been signed on a certain day, and this the forlorn little woman was prepared to prove.

"You saw the paper signed?" asked the opposing counsel in cross examination.

"Yes, sir."

"And you take your oath that it was the 13th of August?"

"I know it was, sir."

The lawyer, who thought another date could be proved, assumed an exasperating smile and repeated her words.

"You know it was? And now be so good as to tell us how you know it."

The poor little creature looked from one countenance to another with wide, sorrowful eyes, as if she sought understanding and sympathy; then her gaze rested on the kindly face of the judge.

"I know," she said, as if speaking to him alone, "because that was the day my baby died."—Pearson's Weekly.

Opportunity.

In one of the old Greek cities there stood long ago a statue. Every trace of it has vanished now, but there is still in existence an epigram which gives us an excellent description of it, and as we read the words we can surely discover the lesson which those wise old Greeks meant that the statue should teach to every passerby. The epigram is in the form of a conversation between a traveler and the statue:

"What is thy name, O statue?"

"I am called Opportunity."

"Who made thee?"

"Lysippus."

"Why art thou on thy toes?"

"To show that I stay but a moment."

"Why hast thou wings on thy feet?"

"To show how quickly I pass by."

"But why is thy hair so long on thy forehead?"

"That men may seize me when they meet me."

"Why, then, is thy head so bald behind?"

"To show that when I have once passed I cannot be caught."

Dropping the Curtain.

"No, Mr. Slowun," said the fair possessor of the square chin, "I must respectfully decline to become your other half."

"But why?" asked the astonished young man, who had believed that he was the favored one.

"Because," replied the female extender of the frosty digit, "the man I marry must be brave and fearless. Tonight you let out the information that you have loved me for five long, weary years, but have not dared mention it until the present meeting. A man who has no more nerve than that would hide under the bed while his wife went downstairs to interview a burglar who was making a raid on the family larder. Therefore, Mr. Slowun, I will work the piano for a little slow music while the curtain drops on the farewell scene. You will find your hat on the usual peg of the hall rack. Good evening!"—London Mail.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR
Cures Colds: Prevents Pneumonia

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broadcast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them Remedies of Known Composition.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, pid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

WANTS INFORMATION

Food Commissioner Foust After Violators of Oleo Law.

State Diary and Food Commissioner Foust has issued a statement from Harrisburg, in which he says that he desires information which will aid him in porsecuting violations of the oleomargarine law. Commissioner Foust's statement follows: "Considerable agitation has recently been aroused owing to reported violations of the Oleomargarine Law in a certain section of the State. As Dairy and Food Commissioner, I desire to say that whenever and wherever violations of the Oleomargarine or other Pure Food Laws are discovered by this Bureau, or reported to it, they are proscuted to the full extent of the law. The Oleomarine Law, like the Liquor and other similar laws, is extremely difficult to enforce, and while violations occur now and always have occurred, it is the purpose of this Bureau to reduce violations to a minimum and to punish to the maximum every violator of the provisions of the law. To this end I solicit information that will enable this Bureau to locate any violations of the Oleoargarine Law that may occur in any part of the State.

"This is particularly solicited from dairymen, and especially from the public press, which has much to do with the formation of public sentiment. While public sentiment is strong against wrong-doing generally, and properly so, it is unfortunate that public sentiment in certain parts of the State is more or less opposed to the enforcement of the Oleomarine Law, and for this reason in its fight for observance of the law this Bureau invites the co-operation and support of every newspaper, every organization and every individual in the Commonwealth."

Commissioner Foust concludes his statement with extracts from the records in his office. According to his figures in 1901 and 1902 fines and costs collected amounted to $5,273 59; in 1903-4-5 and 6, they amounted to $35,687.50, and from 1907 to June 15th, of this year, to $33, 429 28.

Do You Get Up With a Lame Back?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. W. O. Smith of Chicago shaved her husband every other day for a month, thereby earning $1, which she donated to foreign missions.

Mrs. George Westinghouse, Jr., who was Miss Brocklebank of England before she married an American, is famous for her devotion to sports and athletics.

Mrs. Frank B. Vrooman, daughter of General John C. Black of the civil service commission, has paid $3,000 for the pew next to that occupied by Mrs. William H. Taft in St. John's Episcopal church, Washington.

Mme. Uriu, wife of Vice Admiral Uriu of the Japanese navy, is, like him, a product of American educational institutions, she having graduated from Vassar and he from the Naval academy at Annapolis.

Mrs. George Dewey has studied the arranging of trophies to advantage, and the entire second floor of the mansion in Sixteenth street, Washington, is filled with souvenirs of the most stirring part of the admiral's naval career.

Mrs. G. Howland Shaw was elected president of the Massachusetts Association Opposed to the Further Extension of Suffrage to Women at its annual meeting, which was recently held in Boston. The vice presidents elected were Mrs. J. Randolph Coolidge, Miss Anna L. Dawes, Mrs. Charles Eliot Guild, Mrs. Charles D. Homans, Miss Agnes Irwin and Mrs. Henry W. Whitney.

Pen and Brush.

Sir Joshua Reynolds was the first president of the British Royal Academy.

Bjornstjerne Bjornson, the Norwegian novelist, who has been seriously ill at Laurvik, is improving gradually. He had a paralytic seizure June 5, but neither his mind nor his speech was affected.

Maeterlinck is now living and working in a picturesque old abbey midway between Rouen and Havre. He has been writing a new drama, and he is always, as he himself says, writing a new book.

W. P. Frith, R. A., the veteran English artist, was recently congratulated by the king on attaining the ninetieth anniversary of his birthday. Mr. Frith still busies himself with his brush when the light is strong enough to suit.

Fly Catches.

The Cincinnati club has sold Pitcher Chappelle to the Rochester (Eastern league) club.

Manager Bresnahan of the St. Louis Nationals has released Shortstop Reilly to Baltimore.

Graham of the Boston Nationals is one of the most valuable all round catchers in the profession.

Manager Harry Lumley of Brooklyn has signed "Lanky" Anderson, the University of Maryland pitcher. Anderson pitched five shutout victories for the college nine in the spring.

When Harry Davis of the Philadelphia Americans gets ready to quit the national pastime Connie Mack won't be without a first baseman. Manager Connie Mack has been grooming Barr for the initial sack.

Laundry Lines.

Add a teaspoonful of sugar of lead to the water in which fine silk hosiery is washed to prevent the color from fading.

See that clothes are thoroughly dried and aired after being ironed; otherwise they will not smell fresh and sweet and white garments will soon become yellow.

When you sprinkle clothes for ironing cover the basket with a big, heavy blanket and clothes will keep moist and not mildew or sour in the hottest weather. Place the basket in a cool place, especially if articles are sprinkled at night to iron the next day.

Train and Track.

Alaska has a trifle fewer than 300 miles of railroad.

Mexico's railway mileage is growing fast. During the last six months of 1908 263 kilometers were added.

The conductor, engineer and fireman on the Chicago express over the Reading and Lehigh Valley railroad are brothers.

It is claimed to be the purpose of the Great Northern to build west through the province of Manitoba at the earliest possible moment, and there are some who predict that the road will be extended farther westward.

Things Theatrical.

Frederick Perry has been engaged for the cast of "An American Widow."

Henry B. Harris has been elected president of the National Association of Producing Managers.

May Robson will begin her next season in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" about the middle of August.

Ellen Terry was one of the interested spectators at Rose Stahl's performance in London of "The Chorus Lady."

In a lawsuit over royalties it developed lately that the profits of "The Virginian" up to last June were nearly $160,000.

Proverbs.

A child is known by his manners.—Irish Proverb.

Cowards haste to die; the brave live on.—French Proverb.

If things were done twice all would be wise.—Spanish Proverb.

He that will not look before him must look behind him.—Gaelic Proverb.

That's the Question.

Clifford can ask questions quicker than we can answer them, and a few days ago his uncle told him he would turn into an interrogation point. I agreed with him and said: "Yes, I remember seeing a picture of a little boy turning into one. He had become more and more curved and finally had become just a large interrogation point."

Cliff listened intently, and when I had finished he instantly asked, "Well, how did they keep the dot under him?"—Circle Magazine.

Why Not?

Grandpa likes to kiss wee Sallie.
She says no;
Says his whiskers, thick and bushy,
Prick her so.

Grandpa's head is soft and shiny
On the top,
Where the hair began to thin and
Would not stop.

Grandpa kisses. Sallie questions,
So 'tis said,
"Grandpa, why not put your whiskers
On your head?"
—Chicago Record-Herald.

Careless Charles.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "what is a piker?"

"A piker is a man who starts with a shoestring and tries to run it up into a bank roll."

"How careless of you! Every time you used to go to the races you insisted on wearing button shoes!"—Washington Star.

Texas Gives Up Mars For Melons.

We don't care much to signal Mars,
But we've about a million cars
Of melons, we give you a tip,
All ready now to pick and ship;
Cucumbers till you just can't rest,
And onions—say, we've got the best
And biggest ever raised, I guess!
Just ask Bermuda. She'll confess.
We've got no time to signal Mars.
We're loading truck on to our cars.
—Houston Post.

Going Some.

"My uncle used to smoke his pipe and blow smoke rings that would float across the room and ring the doorknob."

"My uncle," said the other liar dreamily, "used to blow some that would ring the doorbell."—Puck.

The Ways of Fate.

Fate hit me very hard one day.
I cried: "What is my fault?
What have I done? What causes, pray,
This unprovoked assault?"

She paused, then said: "Darned if I know!
I really can't explain!"
And just before she turned to go
She whacked me once again.

Financial Aviation.

"So you played those tips on the market?"

"Yes. I took a flier in Wall street, but something went wrong with my steering gear."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

An Admonition.

O Mars, when we exchange remarks some day,
As wise men say that we are sure to do,
Pray heed this early warning. Do not say:
"Hello, there! Is it hot enough for you?"
—Houston Post.

As a Last Resort.

Uncle—Johnny, wouldn't you like to be an angel?

Johnny—Not as long as there's a show for me to become a baseball pitcher or a circus clown.—Chicago News.

Figuring the Expense.

A fisherman went on a glad holiday,
And great was the pleasure he found,
Though the fish that he caught, so the knowing ones say,

"How long will you be gone?"

"A week."—Atlanta Constitution.

Happy Thought.

The poor clairvoyant mused, "If I
Could only rich become
I'd be what everybody likes—
A happy medium."
—Kansas City Times.

Shopping.

"I hear you are giving a bargain matinee today?"

"Yes, madam."

"May I see one act as a sample?"—Washington Herald.

Boarding House Plunge.

You dump into the tub some salt
That's finely ground,
And then into the tub you vault
And splash around.
It's like an ocean bath, one finds,
Although it lacks the melon rinds.

The water isn't quite so rough
As ocean waves,
Yet fills the picture well enough
And money saves,
And other boarders at the door
Will imitate the surf's loud roar.

She Knew the Saint.

Margery's cousin, Cecilia, was eighteen and pretty. She was also devoted to music and spent hours practicing on a large pipe organ. This, together with the fact that she invariably wore a rapt expression when so engaged, earned for her the nickname of St. Cecilia. It happened that Margery's mamma was called to town and left her five-year-old daughter in charge of an obliging neighbor. This lady undertook to amuse her young guest by showing her a collection of prints, among which was a copy of the familiar presentation of the patron saint of music seated at the organ.

"This, my dear," said the obliging hostess, "is a picture of St. Cecilia."

"It doesn't look a bit like her," spoke up the tiny visitor.

"Why, how do you know?" inquired the astonished owner of the print.

"How do I know?" returned the equally astonished Margery. "Why, St. Cecilia is my own first cousin. She teached me my prayers an' how to play jackstones."

When Children Smoked.

In the seventeenth century in England the practice of juvenile smoking was almost universal, at least according to Jorevin de Rochefort, a French traveler of that period. In an account published in 1671 he gives a description of an evening he spent in Worcester. He was catechized by one of the townsmen as to the habits of the French people. "While we were walking about the town," he writes, "he asked me if it was the custom in France as in England that when the children went to school they carried in their satchel with their books a pipe of tobacco, which their mother took care to fill early in the morning, it serving them instead of breakfast, and that at the accustomed hour every one laid aside his book to light his pipe, the master smoking with them and teaching them how to hold their pipes and draw in their tobacco, thus accustoming them to it from their youths, believing it absolutely necessary for a man's health."

The King of Instruments.

Restricted as is its range of dynamics, the violin has had for its votaries men of such widely differing temperaments as Paganini and Spohr, Wilhelmj and Sarasate, Joachim and Ysaye. Its literature does not compare with that of the piano, for which Bach, Beethoven, Schumann, Chopin and Brahms have written their choicest music, yet the intimate nature of the violin, its capacity for passionate emotion, crowns it—and not the organ with its mechanical tonal effects—as the king of instruments. Nor does the voice make the peculiarly poignant appeal of the violin. Its lowest note is the G below the treble clef and its top note a mere squeak, but it seems in a few octaves to have imprisoned within its wooden walls a miniature world of feeling. Even in the hands of a clumsy amateur it has the formidable power of giving pain, while in the grasp of a master it is capable of rousing the soul.—James Huneker in Everybody's.

The Use of Iron.

Iron has been known to men for a very long time. In the time of the Assyrians it was extensively used, iron saws, knives and other tools having been found by Layard at Nineveh. Homer refers to the forging of iron, while the hardening and tempering of steel appear to have been operations in common use among the early Greeks. The employment of a kind of bellows for the forging of tools, presumably of iron, figures in Egyptian sculpture of 1500 B. C. Cast iron appears to have been discovered about 350 B. C. Through the agency of the Romans the manufacture of iron was introduced all over the then known world and into those regions where it had not been previously known.—New York American.

Chinese Filial Piety.

The following Chinese story illustrates the national regard for filial piety: A man and his wife maltreated the husband's mother. As a punishment the scene of the act was openly cursed, the active agents were put to death, and the mother of the wife was bambooed, branded and exiled for her daughter's crime. The house in which the offenders lived was dug up from the foundations. Moreover, the scholars of the district were precluded from attending public examinations, and even the magistrates were deprived of their offices. These drastic measures were designed to render the empire filial.

Called His Papa Down.

Little Willy is a bright boy and a saucy boy. His apt answers have often turned away wrath and often turned it upon him strongly. The other day his father was reprimanding him for some misdeed, and Willy was answering very saucily. The father became very angry and, seizing the youngster by the collar, said: "See here, young man, you must not talk like that to me. I never gave my father impudence when I was a boy." Willy was not feazed at all. With a cherubic smile he looked into papa's eyes and said, "But, papa, maybe your father didn't need it." 'Twas all off. Willy escaped punishment, while papa retired to another room.

Debbin's Journey.

The family horse, who rejoiced in the eminently proper equine name of Dobbin, had earned a rest by long service and was accordingly sent away to the country to spend his declining years in the broad pastures of a farmer friend of his owner. The distance being somewhat excessive for his rheumatic legs, he was shipped to his new home by rail.

Little Edna, the family four-year-old, viewed the passing of Dobbin with unfeigned sorrow. She sat for a long time gazing disconsolately out of the window. At last, after a deep sigh, she turned with a more cheerful expression and said:

"Did old Dobbin go on the choo-choo cars, mamma?"

"Yes, dear," answered her mother.

A broad grin spread over the little girl's face. "I was just thinking," she said, "how funny he must feel sitting up on the plush cushions."—Woman's Home Companion.

No Business Good Business.

"Yes," said the quiet man, "business has been good with me this week—or bad—I don't know which you would call it. I have been busier than the company likes to have me."

"What do you mean by that? Is there an employer who does not like to have his employees work? Could I get a job there? It seems to me that such a position would suit my temperament exactly."

"The company doesn't care to have anything doing in my department. It would be glad to pay me my salary and never have me do a stroke of work."

"What an ideal job! What kind of a place is it?"

"I am an adjuster of death claims for a life insurance company."—New York Press.

Amateur Weather Prophets.

"The old weather prophets there are left now," remarked a Cleveland lawyer who was raised in the country, "are professionals. The good old fashioned amateur weather prophets that could tell you what the next day would be like just by sniffing the atmosphere and looking at the sky are no more. People are growing up to depend on the weather reports in the newspapers, and they don't develop any intuition in that direction any more. When I was a kid I used to ask my father what the next day's weather would be with just as much feeling of confidence in what he would tell me as I would have in an unabridged dictionary if I wanted to look up a word. And, as a rule, I wasn't disappointed."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Queen's Critical Brother.

Marie Antoinette's brother Joseph could not bear the rouge pot, and one evening when the queen was going out, being heavily rouged, the emperor was looking on. Pointing to a lady present who was excessively bedaubed with paint, Joseph remarked facetiously: "A little more under the eyes! Lay on the rouge like fury, as that lady does!"—Hassard's "Louis XVI."

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have trifled with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it.

Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dullness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary pepsin "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Pepsin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all.

Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

Here and There.

F. W. Crider transacted business at Bellwood one day last week.

Miss Elsie Boyd, of Danville, is the guest of Miss Elizabeth Gephart.

Send us $1 and we will send you all the news in "The Republican" each week for one year.

Miss Nane Shrock, of Akron, Ohio, is visiting at the home of Thomas Donachy, on Bishop street.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fleming, of Altoona, were in town over the Fourth, the guests of Thomas Fleming.

Judge and Mrs. Ellis L. Orvis entertained at their home, on East Linn Street, on last Thursday evening.

Lawyer Clement Dale transacted business in Lock Haven, on Monday, and at Philipsburg, on Tuesday, of this week.

Notice the new advertisement of the Bellefonte Trust Company. It tells in a word the strength of that well known financial institution.

Mrs. E. S. Dorworth departed yesterday for Loganton, where she will spend several days with her brother, John Jenkins, and Mrs. Jenkins, of Milton.

Miss Nellie Mingle, of Centre Hall, was a Bellefonte visitor for several days last week, being the guest of Misses Roxana and Helen Mingle, on East High street.

John Meese, the hustling grocer, has added greatly to the appearance of his home by erecting a new cement sidewalk and a neat stone wall along the front of his lawn.

John Munson, who has a splendid position at Baltimore, turned his work over to assistants for a day or two in order to spend the Fourth at the Munson home, on Allegheny Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. Ruger have returned to the home of Mrs. Ruger's father, W. C. Lingle, after a two-months visit to Janesville, Wisconsin. They will in the near future remove to Philipsburg.

Mrs. Clarence Long, of Lewistown, who had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Earle C. Tuten, returned home early last week. Amos Cole, another visitor at the Tuten home, also returned to Lewistown.

Dr. Hiram M. Hiller returned to his home, at Chester, on Sunday night, after experiencing all kinds of good luck angling for trout in Fishing Creek. Mrs. Hiller and children will continue their visit at the home of Mrs. William P. Wilson, on High Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward Fleming returned last week from Butler, where they had been visiting Mrs. Fleming's parents. In the Fall Mr. and Mrs. Fleming will remove to Harrisburg, where Ward has a desirable position as an instructor in the schools of that city.

T. B. Buddinger, the well known Snow Shoe business man, accompanied by Mrs. Buddinger, picked out last week as just the time for a delightful automobile trip. Without sending any word in advance of their coming they journied to Salladasburg, Lycoming county, where they enjoyed a nice little visit with Mr. Buddinger's venerable father, William Buddinger.

Sim, the Clothier's, big "End of Season Clearing Sale" affords an exceptional opportunity to Centre countians to provide themselves with first-class clothing at greatly reduced prices. Sim's advertisement, on page 3, gives the information which enables you to tell at a glance how much may be saved by attending his sale. Something saved is something gained.

It was a delightful little chat we had one day last week with Reuben Lucas, of Howard, who happened to be in town and took time to callat "The Republican" office. To count the years would make it a long time ago, but to hear him tell his experiences running a canal boat makes it seem as if it were but a short while since there were no trains in and out of Howard.

Nathan Reisman, of Princeton, Indiana, is a guest at the Baum home, on Bishop Street. Morris Baum has been making the evenings pass quickly for him with drives about town behind one of his father's fast horses. Its a safe bet that in odd moments Mr. Reisman has picked up some valuable business pointers from another hustling brother-in-law, "Sim, The Clothier."

Grant Hoover, formerly a resident of Bellefonte, but now one of Williamsport's hustling business men and president of the Williamsport Insurance Exchange, was in town last week and gave "The Republican' office a call. Grant does things right, if he does them at all, and in this instance he planked down a one dollar bill to insure his receiving "The Republican" for the next year.

Montgomery & Co. have planned some improvements to their store which will add greatly to the appearance of that well known business place and at the same time afford more room for the constantly increasing trade. An addition is being erected in the rear of the store room, while the front of the store is being put into shape for extensive alterations which will make it far more attractive to patrons. The present plan of show windows will be rearranged to provide more room for displaying goods. A number of additional hard wood cases will be placed in the store for the display of clothing.

Henry Grip, of Tyrone, was the guest of Louis Daggett last week.

Col. and Mrs. Fred. W. Reynolds, and children, are at Beach Haven, N. J.

Mrs. Harry Keller and four children, are guests of William H. Keller, at Ocean City, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Finkelstine are rejoicing over the arrival of a fine girl baby. Congratulations.

Fred Davis, on Monday last, caught a 19½ trout opposite the Bush House. The trout weighed 4½ pounds.

Miss Gertrude Durst, of McKees Rocks, visited Misses Helen and Roxana Mingle several days last week.

Isaac Miller, the well known contractor and builder, has started work on several new houses on Wilson Street.

Harry Yealy and Malcolm O'Neil, of Philadelphia, were guests last week at the home of Mrs. Smith, of Coleville.

Miss Daisy Potter entertained at the Country Club on Friday of last week, in honor of Miss Elsie Boyd, of Danville.

Mrs. David J. Kelley and children have returned from Snow Shoe, where they enjoyed a little outing at the Mountain House.

Misses Helen and Roxana Mingle will depart today for an extended visit with friends in Columbus, Lima and other points in Ohio.

Miss Marie White came up from Williamsport to spend the Fourth with her sisters and her aunt, Miss Powell, at the Brockerhoff House.

Professor McDowell and Charles Foster, of State College, dropped into "The Republican" office, to say "How'dy," on Saturday of last week.

Walter Rankin, who had been visiting his father, William B. Rankin, over the Fourth, returned to his home in Harrisburg, on Thursday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. "Cy" Grenninger, of Philadelphia, returned to their home last week after a delightful visit to old home scenes in and about Bellefonte.

We are glad to be able to announce that Mrs. Charles Shope, of Lyontown, who has been quite ill, is recovering nicely and will soon be able to be up and about as usual.

Miss Mary Snyder, of Lancaster, a daughter of the late Rev. W. H. Foster, formerly pastor of the Bellefonte Reformed church, is visiting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. G. H. Hayes.

An ice cream and cake festival will be held by the ladies of the United Brethren Church on Saturday evening, next, in the room adjoining the church. The public are cordially invited to be present.

The Pruner Orphanage looks quite spick and span in a new coat of green and white paint. The appearance of the grounds will be further improved by the erection of an iron fence in the near future.

A friend by our side tells us, what we hope to realize, that "Centre county Republicans expect a successful forward movement under the new editorial management of "The Bellefonte Republican."

Miss Rebecca Jacobs, who had been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Crider, on Linn street, for some time, departed on Saturday, of last week, for Mifflintown, where she has secured a position.

Rev. and Mrs. R. Crittenden returned on Thursday of last week from Donora, where they had been visiting their daughter Lillian, whose husband, D. W. Stinson, holds a responsible position with the American Steel and Wire Co.

Rev. C. C. Shuey delivered an interesting address last Sunday evening at the Children's day services in the Coleville Olive Branch chapel. Rector John Hewitt will preach there next Sunday at 3 p. m. Those who come early will occupy seats; those coming late will occupy standing room.

Mrs. John Curtin, Mrs. John H. Gibson, of Lansdowne, and Mrs. Charles E. Dorworth took their babies down to Hecla Park, on Thursday of last week, for a "babies picnic." Judging from the stories the youngsters tried to tell on their return the affair at times assumed the form of a miniature "Mothers' Congress."

Miss Cecelia Armor several days ago received a picture which recalled an old Bellefonte family. It was from Harry Sternberg, now a prosperous fruit merchant away out in Washington. The picture showed Harry standing in front of his place of business and wearing a smile telling better than words that he and success are traveling hand in hand.

Two thappy grandmothers went to Pittsburg last week for a little visit with that interesting baby which has taken possession of the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Mac. Curtin. To make sure that neither might have an advantage over the other in winning the affection of baby Curtin Mrs. George F. Harris and Mrs. H. R. Curtin decided to make the trip together.

Mrs. Aaron Katz went over to Lewistown on Monday of last week, where she met her son, Joseph Katz, who is one of the substantial merchants of that place. Together they departed for California to attend the big convention of Elks. Joe is a prominent member of the order. When he planned taking in the California trip he looked about for the best companion to be found, so he, of course, decided in favor of his mother.

Mrs. J. L. Spangler entertained on Saturday night, July 3.

Jerome Harper spent several days last week at the Harper home, on Linn Street.

Run your eye over Claster's advertisement. You will find something there of interest.

Miss Calderwood, superintendent of the Bellefonte Hospital, is away on a vacation.

Dr. J. Coburn Rogers is expected to arrive in Bellefonte today, to make this his permanent home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Curtin and little John Curtin, Jr., spent the Fourth at the homestead, at Curtin.

An ice cream and cake festival will be held on the lawn of the Coleville Methodist Episcopal Church, Thursday, July 22.

Mrs. Joseph L. Runkle and little son went over to Mahaffey last week for a visit with her mother, returning home on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Garbrick, of Philadelphia, were visitors last week at the home of Mr. Garbrick's mother, on East High Street.

Mrs. Lizzie Mallory, of Altoona, daughter of Capt. W. H. Fry of Pine Grove Mills, visited sevearl days this week at the Speer home.

C. M. Parrish, the druggist, was summoned to Ebensburg yesterday by a telegram announcing the death of his father. Mrs. Parrish accompanied him.

Charles L. Kinsloe, of Lock Haven, was greeting friends in town last week. He will return, in September, to State College, where he is an assistant instructor.

Miss Helen Ceader, Miss Mary I. Crider, Edmund Hayes and Malcolm Mitchell made up a little party at bridge at the Country Club, on the afternoon of the Fourth.

Oscar Gill, of Gilltown, near Pleasant Gap, fell from a ladder, while picking cherries, on Friday, last, and sustained a fractured thigh and severe bruises about the body, generally He was removed to the Bellefonte Hospital.

Our hat is off to George H. Smull, of Smullton Busy as he is and constantly on the go he found time to be the first man to drop into "The Republican" office under the new management, pay a year's subscription in advance and say: "Good Luck."

Edward Hepburn, the well known builder and contractor, was shingling the roof of the residence of Mrs Emma Rapp, on Half Moon Hill, when he fell to the ground. His right collar bone was broken and he was otherwise injured about the head and body

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh N. Crider entertained a small week-end house party last week, the guests being Miss Jeanette Freeman, Miss Leah Cochran, Mr. Harold Biddle and Mr. John Bayer, all of Tyrone. Miss Cochran sang a very pretty solo in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning.

James McGuinness, of Punxsutawney, dropped into town for a day or two last week to see Mrs. McGuinness and that hustling son, Robert, who makes things hum at the home of Grandfather William A. Lyon, on High Street. It is probable that in the near future Mr. and Mrs. McGuinness will move to Buffalo.

Mrs. Edward Tausig and her two children returned to Har-risburg last week after several very pleas. ant weeks at the Fauble home. Ever since the children went away Grandfather Fauble has been wondering why everything is so quiet and what makes the days so long. All he needs do to find out is to ask Grandmother Fauble.

Don't forget the opera house this coming Saturday night. Mr. Smith will have a new lot of music that, of itself, is worth many times the cost of admission, and the pictures are works of art. That accounts for the immense crowd at last Saturday night's performance. "Go early and stay as long as you like," is the rule at that popular amusement place. All for 5 cents. The opera house is cozy, cool and comfortable, so don't miss Saturday night.

CLYDE OBERLIN DEAD

Former Bellefonte Academy Boy Dies In Tennessee.

Every student at the Bellefonte Academy and many others will learn with the deepest regret of the death of Clyde A. Oberlin, at Johnson City, Tennessee, on July 3. One of the most popular boys ever enrolled at the Academy "Oby" was at one time or another captain of the football eleven and the basket ball team and all-around athlete of considerable ability. He attended the Academy two terms and planned returning in September.

Typhoid fever was the cause of his deoth. Especially sad is the fact that his father and one sister are afflicted with the same disease. Oberlin was 22 years old. Until two years ago he resided with his parents at Punxsutawney.

Lutherans Hold Picnic.

The congregation of the Bellefonte Lutheran church held their annual basket picnic at Hecla Park, on Thursday of last week. Upward of one hundred persons were in attendance. The weather man obligingly contributed a delightful day for the occasion and all who were present reported having had a good time,
